Post-War Program

AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND

MAJ. GEN. ROBERT M. WEBSTER,
Commanding General, Air Transport Command

THE vulnerability of the economic structure of the United States to attack from the air makes our future security dependent upon the rapidity with which spearheads can be established to launch an air offensive against enemy sources of air power, and to deny such an enemy the use of air bases from which he can operate effectively against the United States. The combat forces required to seize these advanced bases and to bring an air offensive to bear on the enemy in an emergency are provided in the Armed Forces. The ability of these combat forces to act quickly, however, is measured by the speed with which they can be established and maintained in advanced locations. This deployment and support is the job of the Air Transport Command.

The vital necessity for military air transport was proved beyond a question in World War II. Lacking an air transport force at the outset of the war, the Air Forces found it necessary to start from scratch and to build a fleet to supply, by air, allied forces dispersed around the globe. Because of our geographical location and the valiant efforts of our allies, we had sufficient time to deploy our forces and build a supporting global air transport system before the enemy could bring his air power to bear against us. In a future war such a preparatory period will probably be denied us. Present war potentials will not permit a lag in undertaking offensive or defensive operations; consequently, a strategic air transport organization must be ready to function instantly, not only in establishing offensive spearheads in forward zones, but also in furnishing support and reinforcement in personnel and supplies to combat areas. Since air is the most flexible and fastest medium of transport, it must be depended upon to meet unknown situations that will face the United States on M-Day.

Examples of the requirements and the satisfaction thereof by Air Transport Command are historic and include the well-known India-China "Hump" operation, culminated in July 1945 with the delivery of 71,043 tons of cargo to Allied forces operating in China, the 24-hour movement of desperately needed anti-submarine personnel to the North Atlantic area, delivery of over 73,000 pounds of parachutes to the South Pacific area in preparation for the Nadzab jump, delivery of 15 tons of shell fuses required by the 8th Army to repel Rommel at Cairo and others too numerous to mention. Stronger Organization For USMC Sea Forces

To provide for the possibility of atomic warfare and to give increased flexibility to their striking forces, the Marine Corps will reorganize the units of its two Fleet Marine Forces.

General Alexander A. Vandegrift, USMC, Commandant of the Corps, explained that "the reorganization, to be effected in the near future, will provide a greater number of combat-ready units, increase the firepower of the units and provide more highly mobile striking forces."

The increased flexibility of the units is expected to expedite formation of task forces and the rapid movement of Marines to any part of the world, according to the Commandant. In event of atomic warfare, the small, self-contained units could be transported by submarine, air, or dispersed surface vessels without administrative difficulties and without sacrificing firepower and efficiency.

Under the new plan each division headquarters will be organized to provide command groups to facilitate rapid shifting of attack forces. Marine Divisions will consequently be more mobile and hard hitting in either the attack or the defense. At the same time, task units smaller than a division may be readily formed for special missions.

Firepower for Marine divisions and brigades will be increased and supporting weapons and units will be integrated with infantry battalions. Artillery batteries will be increased in strength from four guns to six.

Each Infantry battalion will receive additional anti-tank weapons and will have available tank, artillery, rocket, naval gunfire and aircraft support. Distribution of supplies will be centralized under control of the Service Command, units of which will train and maneuver in conjunction with tactical units.

Marine brigades will be organized in a similar fashion, with approximately half the strength of a Marine division.

Elimination of infantry regimental headquarters, artillery battalion headquarters and other "overhead" units will provide a greater percentage of Marines for basic duties in proportion to overall strength.

Each of the new infantry components will perpetuate the designation of noted wartime regiments. For example, the 4th Infantry Battalion will be known as the "Fourth Marines." Divisions and Brigades will retain their numerical designations, such as the "1st Marine Division" or the "3rd Marine Brigade."

General Vandegrift said the general wartime organization has been retained until now in order to expedite demobilization and redeployment of units from the Pacific.

The Fleet Marine Force, which during the war was concentrated in the Pacific, is now divided into Atlantic and Pacific forces, units of which are available for action with the Atlantic and Pacific fleets of the Navy.

Express Your Views!

Officers of all the Armed Services are urged to send to the Army and Navy Journal their comments and suggestions on the promotion and elimination bills proposed by the War and Navy Departments.

Copies of these comments are being forwarded by the Army and Navy Journal to the members of the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and House of Representatives to assist them in their studies. The identities of the individual officers are kept confidential, the names are not made known to the committees or to anyone outside the Army and Navy Journal staff doing the actual copying.

Forced Attrition

Following is the third and last of a series of articles prepared under the supervision of Brig. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, USA, chairman of the War Department Promotion Planning Board, explaining details of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947.

Former articles have been on Army promotion lists, in 5 April issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, and on methods of promotion in the 12 April issue.

This article covers the subject of forced attrition.

a. Attrition under existing law.

Attrition in the Regular Army Officer Corps is limited at present to that resulting from death, resignation, retirement for age and physical disability and removal of unsatisfactory officers from the active list.

b. Weaknesses in present plan of attrition.

Although the present limitation on attrition produces a desirable effect on the morale of individual officers because of the security it offers, nevertheless the failure to employ some degree of forced attrition is definitely to the disadvantage of the War Department. Some control of attrition, over and above normal attrition must be exercised by the War Department if it is to properly carry out the following personnel management responsibilities:

(1) Provide a sufficient flow of promotion to permit officers to reach the grades of colonel and general officer at a reasonable age, and to give each officer the opportunity to compete for these grades. If the comparatively few officers required to fill the limited vacancies in these grades are permitted to remain there indefinitely then many officers eligible for promotion to these grades are denied any opportunity for promotion because of a lack of position vacancy, regardless of their ability.

(2) Keep surplus in all grades to a minimum. This is particularly important in the grade of lieutenant colonel in which grade a surplus of overage officers tends to accumulate due to automatic promotion ceasing with that grade. This condition is particularly exaggerated and critical when grade humps reach this point.

(3) Prevent officers from advancing into grades and responsibilities beyond their professional capacity. This condition cannot be avoided if attrition continues to be limited to the present normal attrition. Each individual is at present promoted to and including the grade of colonel entirely on the basis of his seniority. If an individual is able to perform as an officer sufficiently well to avoid courts martial or reclassification he is advanced regardless of his ability to hold the higher grades.

c. Plan for forced attrition.

Authority for forced attrition based on the following principles is considered necessary if the War Department is to properly execute its personnel management responsibilities.

(1) In those grades on which there is a

House OK of Promotion This Session is Sought

Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo), chairman of the House subcommittee on personnel in the Armed Services, this week announced that he is working to have the House pass the War and Navy Department promotion bills before adjournment this Summer.

"I think we can get the bills out in May," he declared. In any event, he said, "I hope we can get them passed in this session. I'd like to clear them up before Congress goes home for the Summer."

Although hearings on the Navy bill, H.R. 2537, have been delayed for a week, Mr. Short expects to resume hearings about 28 April, when the Navy will continue its presentation of its bill establishing a new, peacetime basis for Navy and Marine Corps officer promotions.

Chairman Short is anxious to hear the views of both Secretary Forrestal and Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, USN, on the Navy bill, he said. Their appearance before the personnel subcommittee may be delayed, however, by a few days more of explanation of how the Navy bill would operate.

The Bureau of Naval Personnel anticipates only two or three more days of detailed presentation. When hearings on the Navy bill are completed, it will be set aside until the War Department has completed its presentation of the Army promotion bill.

Representative Short predicted that the Committee on Armed Services will approve the principle of selection for the Army, and that the House will pass a bill containing such provisions.

"The Navy has had selection for 30 years," he asserted, "and the War Department is coming around to it."

Mr. Short has taken note of the comments forwarded to him from the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL's survey of Service opinion, and said that they will be useful to him and the personnel subcommittee when the promotion bills are voted on for reporting to the House.

Mr. Short asserted that, in general, he has found that officers in the Fleet and ashore away from Washington have approved of the Navy bill. "And it is a good bill," he declared, adding:

"The more you go into it, the more you see its good points." He pointed particularly to provisions for Limited-Duty Only officers, noting that the bill greatly improves opportunities for all enlisted men and warrant officers to earn commissions in the Navy.

The Navy bill also provides "a more equitable distribution of rank, greater opportunity for all officers, particularly in the lower grades, and an orderly system for the elimination of the less-qualified officers."

Representative Short said "there seems to be strong sentiment for reestablishing the grade of Commodore."

With this in mind, the Bureau of Naval Personnel has prepared what amounts almost to a re-draft of the Navy bill in order to provide for the rank of Commodore, instead of having "Rear Admirals of the upper half" and of the "lower half."

U. S. Daily Press Views

Atom and Security

Providence Journal—"In a new analysis of national defense, the War Department drives a large spike through the prevailing idea that international control of atomic energy automatically eliminates the threat of atomic warfare. The disturbing prospect is that even the best international control system may give only 'approximately one year' of warning before the blow strikes."

Boston Christian Science Monitor—"A report made public by the War Department puts the case for a vastly expanded intelligence service on constructive grounds.  The report is on thinner ice when it speaks of counter intelligence activities in the United

Philadelphia Inquirer—"Officers of the United States Army, unnamed but apparently of upper rank, have emphasized a situation of grave importance relative to our lack of adequate defenses."

Washington Star—"As the War Department is reported to have concluded in a secret study, if our American plan were in full force five years from now (an unlikely prospect at the moment) and if some country decided to violate it, that country could use the atom plants inside its borders to produce A-weapons within a year's time."

Milwaukee Journal—"Fear of prompt and overwhelming retaliation might be the only deterrent to such an attack by a really determined aggressor nation. Therein is the grave significance of the warning from our best military minds."

New York Daily News—"A grisly document on atomic war possibilities and plans has just moved out of the War Department into the hands of several members of Congress. The paper outlines what we may expect if the Baruch plan for international control of atomic energy goes into effect and some nation is later found to be readying an atomic war regardless."

Worcester Telegram—"While the military men pin their hope to the Baruch plan for atomic control, they recognize the possibility of future attack. America will never again have time to prepare."

Discipline in European Command

Following is the text of a statement recently made to major commanders by Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, Deputy Commander-in-Chief, European Command, and Commanding General of the Ground and Service Forces in the European Command:

"Instructions have been issued to place emphasis on training designed to raise the pride of our soldiers and to effect immediate improvement of military formations and discipline. Initially emphasis is to be placed on reveille and retreat formations, ceremonies, and the ability to handle individual weapons.

"Reveille and retreat formations have been perfunctory in many instances and excused lists too large. If not already required, there will be at least one officer in each unit who will attend reveille and retreat. All commanders will be instructed that inspection at open ranks is the normal procedure at retreat formation. It gives daily opportunity to determine standards of appearance, to include not only fit and care of uniform, but also personal appearance with respect to haircuts and shaves.

"Wherever possible, and we should make it possible, reveille and retreat should be conducted facing the raising and lowering of the flag and men should be impressed that their good appearance at formation is respect for what the ceremony represents. Spectators, military and civilian alike, must be required to render the proper respect to the flag, the colors, and the National Anthem. Proper conduct and understanding of these two formations represents basic discipline and makes for a proud soldier. This applies equally to Women's Army Corps personnel.

"Instructions will also be issued requiring all enlisted men's barracks and separate billets, not occupied by families, to be inspected each day by an officer. In addition, to the fullest extent possible, formal Saturday inspections will be initiated with personnel inspected first in ranks and then in barracks or billets. The standards of inspectors have been too low in the past and unsatisfactory results have been too often rated satisfactory.

"It is imperative that soldiers be trained to know their jobs. Hence, Unit schools for both officers and non-commissioned officers must be held as well as careful, on-the-job training. Considerable trouble has been experienced at schools because of failure on the part of Unit Commanders to perform properly their command functions. It is also imperative that non-commissioned officers be trained and required to accept their responsibilities as leaders."

Gen. Eisenhower Returns

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, returning to Washington 16 April from an inspection tour of Army troops and installations in several southern states, immediately dispatched the following message to Governor Beauford Jester of Texas upon learning of the disaster at Texas City:

"I offer deepest condolence to you and the people of Texas in this tragedy period. As Chief of Staff of the Army, I assure you that we are willing and anxious to give any assistance within our power and resources. Do not hesitate to call on us."

General Jonathan M. Wainwright, commanding general of the Fourth Army with headquarters at San Antonio, has visited the disaster area. Five planes loaded with Army medical supplies were dispatched 16 April from Scott Field, Ill., to the area. The Army is also reopening Crockett Station Hospital, Fort Crockett, Tex., for emergency hospitalization of injured. Air Transport Command planes are available for evacuation purposes, it was announced.

On his tour General Eisenhower visited Fort Bragg, N. C., 2 April, holding a press conference there at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. LeRoy Irwin, commanding general of Fort Bragg and of the V Corps. General Eisenhower said that it is a gamble to depend upon a volunteer Army while the country is still technically in a state of war, citing the danger of allowing occupation forces to fall below the strength necessary for security.

At Fort Benning, Ga., 7 April, General Eisenhower went next to Atlanta to address an Army Day banquet audience, making a plea for a strong military force for the United States.

At the headquarters of the Air University, Maxwell Field, Ala., 8 April, General Eisenhower told a press conference that neither the United States nor any other nation is in shape to fight another global war at this time. He characterized air power as the "dominant factor" in modern warfare, but insisted that there is no such thing as separate air, ground, or naval warfare.

Kermit Roosevelt Fund Exchange

In the first exchange of military lecturers between the United States and Great Britain under terms of the Kermit Roosevelt Fund established by Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt and authorized by Congress in 1945, Maj. Gen. R. A. Hull, CB, DSO, Commandant of the Staff College at Camberley, England, spoke at the U. S. Military Academy, Thursday, 17 April.

His address, "The System of Officer Education in the British Army," was the first of three to be given in this country. On 25 April he will address the Command and Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., on a purely military subject. His final lecture also will be given for military personnel only on 28 April at the National War College, Washington, D. C.

The United States will be represented in England in the exchange of lecturers by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Commanding General of the Second Army. He will speak 21 May at the Imperial Defense College, London, and on 22 May at the Staff College, Camberley, on military subjects. On 27 May, at the Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst, his subject will be "The System of Officer Education in the United States Army."

Visit Industrial Plants

Fourteen senior student officers and two faculty supervisors of The Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington, D. C., will visit six industrial plants in the Baltimore area during the week of 28 April-2 May, Second Army Headquarters in Baltimore announced this week.

Purpose of the field trips is to familiarize the student officers with many industrial processes and problems which cannot be obtained from textbooks and lectures.

Plants to be visited in the Baltimore area, and dates follow:

Bethlehem Shipyard and Steel Co., Baltimore, Md., 28 April.

Westinghouse Electric Co., Baltimore, Md., 29 April.

Chevrolet Motor Corp., Baltimore, Md., 29 April.

Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., 30 April.

Sun Oil Co., Marcus Hook, Pa., 1 May.

Pennsylvania Railroad, Wilmington, Del., 2 May.

The following officers will be members of the group making the field trip to the Baltimore area:

Supervisors: Lt. Cols. F. P. Greer, Inf., and M. J. Haas, Ordnance.

Gen. Somervell Applies Army Rule

General Brethon Somervell, USA-Ret., former commanding general of the Army Service Forces, addressing a meeting of the Baltimore Personnel Association at Baltimore, Md., 16 April, said that he is successfully applying an Army maxim to industry.

General Somervell, who is now president of the Koppers Company, then quoted the definition of morale as it appears in the Soldiers' Handbook:

"Spirit, or morale, is that intangible something that grips and holds the hearts of men and spurs them on to feats of extraordinary achievement when working toward a common purpose."

In industry, General Somervell said, the esprit de corps of the workers is the controlling factor, whether it be in personnel, sales, production, research, or other divisions of management. He urged his hearers to acquaint employees with how production affects them personally, toward the betterment of industrial morale.

WACs For Regular Army

Secretary of War Patterson this week asked Congress to authorize the permanent establishment of the Women's Army Corps in the Regular Army and the Organized Reserve Corps. The measure is similar to that requested by the War Department last year but which was not acted upon by Congress. The Secretary said that the recommendation is made in order to:

(1) maintain a nucleus of women in the Regular Army and the Organized Reserve Corps capable of immediate expansion to meet the country's needs in case of a national emergency; (2) provide a small organization of women in the Regular Army for the application and development of future plans relative to the use of American womanpower in the national security program; (3) insure the most economical use of all personnel by the utilization of women in positions where their special aptitudes best fill Army requirements; and (4) assist in filling the Army's personnel requirements by means of voluntary enlistments.

Gen. Birks to Brown Schools

Brig. Gen. Hammond Davies Birks, USA, (Ret.), former Assistant Division Commander of the Ninth Infantry Division, has just accepted the position of Head of the Military Department and Assistant to the President, of John Brown Schools, Inc.

Brown Schools, Inc., with headquarters in Los Angeles, is composed of six schools: Brown University and University High School, Siloam Springs, Ark.; Brown Military Academy of the Ozarks, Sulphur Springs, Ark.; Brown School for Girls, Glendale, Calif.; Southern California Military Academy, Long Beach, Calif.; and Brown Military Academy, San Diego, Calif., a R.O.T.C. school whose Regular Army Staff consists of Col. Ralph E. Doty and four assistants (one Captain and three Master Sergeants).

Lecturers at USNA PG School

Rear Adm. Thorvald A. Solberg, member of the Military Liaison Committee of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Comdr. Claude V. Hawk, of the Bureau of Ships, lectured at the Post Graduate School on Thursday afternoon, 17 April.

The subjects of the lectures were "The Background of Starch Treatment for Evaporator Feed Water," and "Present Procedure for Starch Treatment."

Retirement Legislation

Representative Overton Brooks (D-La.) told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that his bill, H. R. 2744, carrying the War Departments recommended provisions for retirements is to be taken up in committee as soon as the Army and Navy promotion bills have been considered.

As outlined in the 22 March issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, Title I of the legislation provides for the elimination of officers of the Regular Army; Title II deals with the retirement of officers and warrant officers of the Regular Army; and Title III provides for "Retirement with pay of officers and enlisted personnel of the National Guard and Reserve Corps of the Army of the United States, the United States Naval and Marine Corps Reserve, and the United States Coast Guard Reserve."

Representative James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) has isolated Title III, treating of retirements for Reserves and National Guard, and introduced it as a separate bill.

Representative Brooks expressed his pleasure over the fact that his bill will be handled by sub-committee Number 1 of the Committee on Armed Services, because "It is a strong committee." This sub-committee has Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo.) as its chairman.

Terminal Leave Applications

The Navy has issued a strongly-worded reminder to Naval officers to submit all remaining claims for settlement of unused officer leave to the Bureau of Naval Personnel at an early date.

The new version of the bill provides for Commodores and Rear Admirals in equal number, with a requirement of three years' service in grade of Commodore to establish eligibility for promotion to Rear Admiral.

Tank Officers to Single Arm

The War Department plans the assignment of all officers with armored experience to the Cavalry, subject to the individual's approval, pending the establishment of an Armored-Cavalry arm to replace the present Cavalry.

Letters are being sent to all officers with a record of qualification in Armor, or Mechanized Cavalry, and Cavalry officers not so qualified are being given the opportunity to be detailed in or transferred to other arms or services.

Following is the text of Section II, War Department Circular 94, outlining the plan:

"II. ARMORED CAVALRY. 1. The Armored was constituted as an emergency measure. Because Armor is not a permanent arm an officer assigned to an armored (tank) unit retains his basic branch while so assigned. Upon relief from armored assignment he often loses his identity as an armored officer and is assigned in accordance with his basic arm.

"2. In order that armored officers may retain their armored identity, action is being taken to assign all such officers to a single arm which will have primary responsibility for armored officer personnel. Eventually, it is expected that statutory approval will be given to the formation of an Armored-Cavalry arm which will replace the present Cavalry arm. Pending such action, it is planned to detail in the Cavalry those officers of the other arms who are qualified armored (tank) officers and who do not object to this action. Letters, with a view to their detail in the Cavalry, are being sent to those officers whose records indicate qualification in Armor. At the same time, Cavalry officers who are not qualified in Armor and who do not desire service with Armor are being given an opportunity for detail in or transfer to other arms or services.

"3. As the records available are incomplete in many cases, it is probable that many officers affected may not have been contacted by letter. Such officers who are qualified in Armor may apply for detail in the Cavalry. Similarly, Cavalry officers who are not qualified in Armor or in Mechanized Cavalry may apply for detail in or transfer to other arms or services. These applications should state qualifications or experience and be addressed to The Adjutant General, Attention: WDGPAA-O-CAV, Washington 25, D. C.

"4. This action will have no effect upon the current assignment of any individual concerned.

"5. The contents of this circular will be brought to the attention of all officers."

Construction of Quarters

The War Department asked Congress this week to repeal the present limitation costs of quarters for personnel and substitute therefor a space limitation on the size of quarters for the various grades and ranks, especially in Alaska and outside the continental limits of the United States.

In making the request, Secretary of War Patterson stated quarters are being designed for the Pacific areas, Newfoundland, Alaska, the Antilles and Panama but that "It is impossible to construct quarters of the space limitations allowed by the War Department under from two to four times the statutory limitations." So the Engineers have been designing quarters in size equal to 50-65 per cent of the War Department allowance, but "Structures of this reduced size will cost from one and a half to twice the present statutory limitations."

Secretary Patterson stated that work on overseas quarters "must cease immediately and a program of purely temporary construction be at once instituted unless relief is granted."

Continuing, the Secretary wrote: "Existing statutory cost limitations apply only to the United States and its possessions. By literal interpretation of the statutory provisions unlimited funds could be spent for housing in the Philippines, Okinawa, and Newfoundland. The War Department is averse to such a policy, it having been determined, in the interest of economy and standardization, that quarters in all areas should be comparable."

Existing laws provide that the total cost of quarters for general officers shall not be more than $15,000; for captains to colonels, $12,000; below captain, $9,000. As modified by an amending law, the total cost of quarters for officers of the rank of captain and above should not exceed $14,500, and below captain $12,500.

In place of these provisions, repeal of which would follow, the bill provides that no appropriation shall be spent for the construction of family quarters for personnel of the Army of greater net floor area in square feet per unit than the following: for enlisted men, 1080; warrant officers, flight officers, and commissioned officers below the rank of captain, 1250; majors and lieutenant colonels, 1400; colonels, 1670; general officers, 2100.

These figures may be increased not to exceed 10 per cent outside the continental United States and not to exceed 10 per cent for quarters of commanding officers of stations, bases, or installations based on the normal rank of such officers.

Unification Hearings

Hearings on legislation for the unification of the Armed Services were continued this week, with the Under Secretary of War Royall as a witness.

Stating that "we do not want committeeification, we want unification," Secretary Royall asserted that agitation for unification had had a good effect in reducing the number of committees and boards—that "The Army and Navy now have at least 162 joint committees and boards" whereas "during the war there were in excess of 2,000. Those committees were and are costly in personnel, often personnel of high rank. They are much more costly in delayed decisions, in inconclusive results. You cannot run a business or a department efficiently and well, and you cannot get the greatest value for your money, by operating through committees, particularly through committees whom no single person can control."

"For the bill to have any real value," said the Secretary, "the Secretary of National Defense must exercise as well as possess broad authority as to functions, services, procurement and the like."

Secretary Royall said in his formal statement: "The bill does not contemplate a separate top organization to perform all services for the Army, the Navy and the Air Forces. Nor does it contemplate a separate procurement organization. While some would prefer a fourth branch for these purposes, I am confident that under a strong Secretary of National Defense many economies and efficiencies can be effected without it — can be effected by cross service and cross procurement, that is, by allotting to each of the three armed services the task of acting for all three in certain fields."

After finishing his formal statement, Secretary Royall was bombarded with questions, particularly by Senator Robertson (R-Wyo.), and the following questions and answers resulted:

Sen. Robertson: Where in the bill is there any indication of the definite authority of the Secretary in directing functions?

Sec. Royall: It gives him general authority.

Sen. Robertson: For instance, can the Secretary of National Defense decide that the Marine Corps shall not be used?

Sec. Royall: Not with the functions defined in the Executive Order. But with the authority of the President the functions could be changed; viz—so that the cavalry could not be used in the mountains of Italy.

Sen. Robertson: You interpret the bill to mean that the Secretary of National Defense can change functions?

Sec. Royall: Yes, subject to the two restrictions—(1) the direction of the President, and (2) that the three Departments must be kept separate.

Sen. Robertson: Admiral Nimitz said the functions could be changed.

Sec. Royall: I would need to know whether the reference was to basic functions. I think the Secretary of National Defense should have authority over all the forces—over even the ground forces. If the type of warfare changed and we could not use some branch of the service someone should have the power to abolish it. No branch had more morale than the cavalry, and it took too long to abolish that branch.

Sen. Robertson: Would you object to having the general functions placed in the bill?

Sec. Royall: Yes. We must have flexibility.

Sen. Robertson: You could change the amphibious function of the Marine Corps.

Sec. Royall: Yes. But if a traditional function were ordered changed the President would be appealed to by the individual Secretary. On such a vital matter a Secretary would go to the President.

Sen. Saltonstall: You said that if the words about the authority of the Secretary were weakened you would prefer there should be no bill?

Sec. Royall: Yes. If the bill is not passed there will be a tendency to drift apart. I believe there will be retrogression rather than disintegration.

Sen. Robertson: There has been objection to putting the functions of the services in the bill. But the bill sets out the functions of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Sec. Royall: It refers rather to the duties of the Staff.

Would Lift Profit Limitation

The Navy Department this week requested Congress to amend provisions in the Vinson-Trammel law and associated laws dealing with the construction of ships and aircraft and the profit limitations on Navy contracts for such construction.

The Department seeks to remove limits on the number of aircraft that may be constructed in Government plants; the permissive suspension of the 10 per cent limitation of production; the 10 per cent limitation on profit; and the requirement that alternate ships and their equipment shall be the output of Government navy yards and other installations.

In a letter to Senator Gurney, chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, Acting Secretary of the Navy Sullivan stated that:

"The main provisions which, in the view of the Navy Department should be amended are those which state (a) that not less than 10 per cent of the aircraft, including the engines therefor, shall be manufactured in Government aircraft factories; (b) that the President on determination that the present Government plants do not permit construction of the required percentage may suspend the 10 per cent production requirement pending expansion and equipment of the Government plants; (c) that profits on contracts for ship and aircraft construction shall not exceed 10 per cent (raised to 12 per cent in 1939) of the contract price; and (d) that the first and each succeeding alternate vessel and the main engines, armor and armament for such vessels, shall be constructed or manufactured in the United States Government navy yards, gun factories, naval stations, ordnance plants or arsenals."

Secretary Sullivan contended that: "The allocation to Government plants of an arbitrary percentage of production is not consistent with orderly planning to accomplish the objectives" of maintaining "the nucleus of a producing aircraft industry capable of rapid expansion to keep the peace and to meet any emergency."

Continuing, the Secretary claimed that, "If the profit-limitation provisions of the Vinson-Trammel Act are retained, there will be serious interference with peacetime procurement." It "may tend to discourage producers from entering these two fields (shipbuilding and aircraft manufacturing) in the Navy's interest."

Courts Martial Revision

A sub-committee of the House Committee on Armed Services initiated hearings this week for a revision of the Army courts-martial manual.

The chairman of the sub-committee, Representative Charles H. Elston (R-Ohio), stated that the Navy Department has similar bill in course of preparation, and that it is the committee's intention to combine the War and Navy Departments bills with provisions as identical as possible. In the meantime other bills on the subject already submitted to Congress are to be considered.

The first witness from the War Department for the bill was Under Secretary of War Royall, who said that cases brought to his personal attention indicated that discrimination between officers and enlisted men "is not nearly as marked as the disparity in treatment in civil life between the influential citizen and the average citizen, whether we are considering a parking ticket or a murder charge."

Changes in courts martial procedure proposed by the bill include granting authority to the Judge Advocate General to assign officers of his Department after consultation with the commanders on whose staff they will serve; requiring of frequent inspections in the field with respect to the administration of military justice; law members of general courts must be officers of the JAG Department or trained lawyers selected by the JAG; "where practicable, defense counsel in general court-martial cases must be attorneys. In any event the defense counsel in both special and general courts must be an attorney in case the prosecuting Judge Advocate is a lawyer"; the final review of all general court cases will be in the JAG Department.

Sentences involving dismissals, dishonorable discharges or bad conduct discharges will have to be confirmed in the JAG's office, and this will place the War Department review of officers' and enlisted men's cases on the same basis. At present sentences of officers are referred to the Secretary of War. The JAG will have the power to grant new trials and set aside sentences if applications are submitted within a year after final disposition of a case.

Qualified senior enlisted personnel from other units could be members of general and special courts, at the discretion of the appointing authority.

At a succeeding session on 15 April, The Judge Advocate General of the Army, Maj. Thomas H. Green, and the Assistant Judge Advocate General, Brig. Gen. Hubert D. Hoover explained the provisions of the legislation.

Limitation of numbers by law there should be a maximum time which an officer may hold the grade. For example, Colonels who have served five years in that permanent grade and who have completed thirty years service should be retired. This action will provide a positive flow through this grade.

(2) There should be a limit to the number of years of service that an officer may serve without reaching the grade of colonel. When a lieutenant colonel has served a reasonable number of years and has not been selected for promotion he should be separated from active service rather than being permitted to become a part of a surplus of overage officers in that grade. Seven years in the grade of Lieutenant or a total of twenty-eight years is considered the maximum period an officer should be allowed to serve in that grade.

(3) In order to prevent prohibitive grade humps in the field grades and to prevent officers with limited ability from progressing into grades which they cannot properly hold, there should be authority to forcibly separate the weaker officers in all grades. These are the officers who are passed over for promotion in two successive years. In order to prevent such forced attrition from being disproportionately severe in "humps" there should be a definite limitation on the amount of forced attrition authorized. Authority to pass over up to twenty per cent of each group of officers being considered for promotion is considered necessary.

d. Results of proposed attrition.

This forced attrition is considered the most economical means of assuring a regular flow of promotion. A definite number of annual vacancies in the grade of colonel and general officer, gives a competitive opportunity for promotion to such grades to every officer. Retiring those officers who are most senior in each grade and who have not been selected for promotion, forces out those officers who have been "passed over" for promotion and whose careers may be assumed, therefore, to be over and their separation will reduce overages existing in those grades. The retirement of lieutenant colonels after 28 years service will reduce the accumulation of overage officers in that grade. In addition, the definite and certain attrition each year will provide for an even inflow of officers at the bottom of the promotion list.

e. Benefits to officers separated under this plan.

(1) Those officers who have completed sufficient service to qualify for voluntary retirement should be authorized to retire under those provisions of law authorizing such voluntary retirement.

(2) Those officers who have not completed sufficient service to be eligible for voluntary retirement should be given a separation allowance in proportion to the amount of commissioned service they have performed.

(3) Officers integrated into the Army under the provisions of Public Laws 281 and 670 should be permitted to count the service credit authorized them for promotion purposes under Public Law 281, for determining eligibility for retirement. To do otherwise would be unfair since these officers in order to accept regular commissions, of necessity, gave up their equity in their civilian occupation.

Comments on Army Bill

Following are some of the comments written to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL by officers of the Army on the new promotion bill proposed by the War Department.

Copies of all comments and suggestions sent to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL will be turned over to the members of the Senate and House Committees on Armed Services. These copies will contain no identification of the individual officers submitting them. The originals will be kept strictly confidential in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL's offices.

Lt. Col. VC: "RA officers of Medical department non-promotion list should be promoted in 3, 12, 20 and 26 years or be offered immediate release under provisions Sec. 16 (e). Sec. 16 (d) (3) should become effective immediately."

The method of establishing years' service for purpose of promotion for those officers appointed in the Regular Army between 28 Dec. 1945 and 31 Dec. 1947 should be changed.

"Under the present system, years' service is established primarily on the basis of age. This method penalizes the young officer who has gained experience as a result of active federal service. For example, an officer 30 years of age who performed five years' active federal service prior to appointment in the Regular Army is credited with five years' service. Whereas, the officer who is 32 years of age but who has not gained experience from active federal service will be credited with seven years' service for promotion purposes. Although age is definitely an important factor, some allowance should be made for promotional purposes for experience gained in active federal service."

Maj. Inf.: "I favor the bill as drafted: Section 23 (b) concerns retiring Lieutenants Colonels with 28 years service in grade of Colonels. Secretary Patterson requested similar passage in Section 16 (e) (1) be deleted, but no comment was made concerning Section 23 (b). Is this consistent?"

Col. Inf.: "The proposed bill for promotion by selection will deny security for officers who dare say what they think or who perform their assigned duties without fear or favor."

"I have had five years of duty with the National Guard and the Organized Reserve. On the first named duty my immediate chief never visited me and knew nothing of my work, yet rated me very low on my efficiency report. In the last named detail my immediate chief visited me twice in two and a half years and was under the influence of liquor on both occasions, giving me a low rating on my efficiency reports. The proposed bill will penalize those officers who perform duty with the National Guard and the Organized Reserve."

Lt. Col. CMP: "World War II temporary promotions should be made permanent. Officers should be promoted on merit and years service should not be considered."

Lt. Col. AC: "I believe the promotion features of the bill are excellent; however, I see no reason why officers eliminated from the Army should receive only a lump sum payment, while officers eliminated from the Navy, on the same basis, would receive retirement pay. I believe the compensation is too generous for officers eliminated after only a few years of service and does not offer security for officers eliminated after lengthy service."

Capt., USA-Ret.: "I favor the bill as drafted—amended below: Officers retd. for physical disability since War I should be given rank relative to length of service under existing law, but necessarily extra pay. Some retd. Lts. and Capt. served long enough to be Majors and Lt. Colonels under the present fair promotion law, but at that time were retd. at lower ranks. Some served 17 years as Lieutenants."

Col. GSC (CmC): "I oppose any system of selection that permits a Junior to jump a Senior."

Easter at Walter Reed

More than three thousand people—patients and duty personnel of Walter Reed General Hospital and the Army Medical Center, their wives and children, relatives and friends from the surrounding residential area, the Secretary of War and other ranking War Department officials—attended the early morning Easter Services at the Medical Center on 6 April. General of the Armies John J. Pershing participated in the Service from the front of his quarters atop the Administration building.

Despite the slightly overcast sky, the crowd began to assemble in the garden amphitheater well in advance of the scheduled hour of 7:30 A.M., and splashes of color, flowers and veils replaced the usual sober reflections seen during previous services. This Easter, being the first since the beginning of the war that the Army personnel could dress in civilian apparel, was the occasion for a real Easter Parade—for the men and women of the Army.

Broadcast by Radio Station WRC, the National Broadcasting Company, the service began with Church Call by the 304th Army Band Buglers and then three thousand voices lifted in joyful tribute, singing "Christ the Lord is Risen Today." Following greetings from Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, Commanding General of the Medical Center, Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, USA, delivered a stirring Easter Sermon. Conducted by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Howell G. Guin, the program also included beautiful Easter anthems by the Walter Reed Memorial Chapel Choir, composed of 25 singers from Washington and vicinity directed by Mrs. Marguerite Brice; prayer and benediction by Chaplain (Capt.) George D. Lessley; and appropriate Easter music by the 304th Army Band conducted by CWO John S. Martin.

The threat of bad weather did not materialize; it turned into a beautiful, sunny day, and before the 2:00 hour set for the "Open House" from 2:30 P.M. in celebration of Army Week, the Easter Parade returned, 2000 strong.

Tours of the post, scheduled to run from 2:45 P.M., commenced at 2:00 P.M., but visitors were still coming in after 4:30, so it was necessary to schedule other tours to accommodate them. The tours took the visitors through the Patients' Mess, the Library, Radiation Therapy, Physical Therapy, and Occupational Therapy Departments and ended at the Gymnasium and Swimming pool. There buses were available to pick up groups for the next attraction of the Open House, which was a vivid demonstration of the activities of a battalion aid station during a battle scene, with sound effects. Two such demonstrations were given during the afternoon.

Other highly interesting features were the exhibits on view in the Red Cross House all during the day—Prosthetic Appliances from the Brace Shop, including the new brace; the new artificial hand and cosmetic glove exhibited by the Prosthetic Research Laboratory; the Aural Rehabilitation Center presented their pictorial display showing step by step process of treatment and fitting of the hard of hearing; and the Army Medical Dept. Research and Graduate School had various exhibits showing different phases of their work.

Also in the Red Cross House, to time with intervals between tours, was the showing of special films—"The Diary of a Sergeant," featuring Harold Russell, academy award winner, and "To the Ladies," featuring the WAC, both produced at Walter Reed; "Your Army Today," the special Army Week film.

The last of the visitors were leaving the post at six o'clock, bringing the Army Medical Center "Open House" to a close. However, the celebration of Army Week will not cease with the "Open House"—there are activities scheduled for the entire week at the Army Medical Center—including a broadcast over WOL, Marian Sexton's "Spice in Life" program from Walter Reed on 9th April at 10:30 A.M., and a combined military and civilian award ceremony on 10th April at 2:00 P.M. in Sternberg Auditorium.

Beau Brummell of the Boulevards!

YOU'RE practically that, of course, the minute you take over any new 1947 Buick. Never before has any automobile so completely won the country by its beauty — so clearly defined the shape of cars to come.

But really to take the stage and hold it — to cut a dashing figure in the smartest of smart company —

It is without question the most wanted version of America's most wanted car.

It's wanted for the freedom that's yours when its handy control swings back the top — and the sky becomes your roof and the birds your travel mates.

It's wanted for the lift and surge of its satiny straight-eight Fireball power plant, master of every grade and hill, monarch of the farthest horizon.

It's wanted for bigness, and the deep comfort of low-set, cushiony seats—wanted for the floating ease of soft all-coil springing, and the sure-footed stride of a car that's big enough and brawny enough for its job.

It's wanted for styling that already has set the pattern for years to come — it's wanted for fun, for adventure, and for year-round, all-round full family use.

The demand for it? Great, of course. The supply? Mounting as fast as Buick's beaver-busy production staff can free up the supply of the fine materials that go into it.

So with patience, one can be yours. With patience, that is — and the foresight to get your order in now.

Navy Studies Atom Protection

The protection of topsides personnel from blast, heat, and the radio-active rays of atomic bombs poses the great problem in the defense of fleets against atomic bomb attack, according to U. S. Navy thinking on the atomic bomb.

The text of the report on War Department views and the major portion of the report on Navy views were published in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Such protection, Dr. Bernard Brodie of Yale University asserts in a study prepared by the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, might require metal gun shields adding more topside weight. Of comparable gravity, he wrote, "is the problem of promptly disposing of radio-active waters which might be washed over the decks of the ship."

"There can of course be no thought of protecting ships or their personnel from the effects of very close blasts from atomic bombs," Dr. Brodie concludes. "The only feasible and legitimate aim is to reduce the radius of destruction of any one bomb, and to depend also upon one's active defenses as well as upon maneuverability and tactical dispersion of the individual units to increase the unattractiveness of our naval craft as targets for the enemy's atomic bombs."

Dr. Brodie's study on War and Navy Department thinking on the atomic bomb was followed up by his own "critique" on Navy views, in which he declares that "the Navy's atomic bomb philosophy seems in its entirety to be based on the presumption that for as far ahead as we can see, the use of atomic bombs will be inhibited militarily by the requirement that 'as nearly as possible every one must be directed to its intended target.'

The complete study in the Library of Congress also includes a letter from Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN, Vice Chief of Naval Operations, to Dr. Brodie, and a set of questions on, "Naval Strategy and Atomic Bomb."

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPSDefense Board Visits USNA

The U. S. Naval Academy was visited 15-16 April by a six-man committee of the Inter-American Defense Board studying officer training at service academies of the armed forces of the American Republics.

The mission of the committee in this study is:

"Survey the scope and character of the requirements for admission to, and the courses required for graduation from (1) institutions whose curricula lead to commissions, regular or reserve, in any of the armed forces of the American Republics, and (2) schools attended by commissioned officers and enlisted men, regular or reserve, for optional or required further military training."

The visiting committee consisted of Col. Guillermo Suero B., Peru, Chairman; Col. Alfred A. Baisi, Argentina; Comdr. Juan Carlos Deambrosio, Uruguay; Wing Comdr. Felix Olmedo, Chile; Lt. Comdr. Luis A. Baquero Herrera, Colombia; and Maj. Amado Hernandez Polanco, Dominican Rep.

Officers of the Secretariat are Lt. Col. George H. Hollingsworth, USA, Lt. Comdr. Harvey R. Nylund, and Maj. R. Ralston Bushart, ORC.

The committee's schedule called for visits to classes, infantry drill, physical training, and a dress parade.

Rhodes Scholarships

Formal requests from commissioned Naval officers on active duty for authority to compete for Rhodes Scholarships will be accepted by the Bureau of Naval Personnel (Pers-4226) until 1 Aug.

In view of existing requirements for Naval personnel and the stress laid upon scholastic ability, the Bureau will not approve the requests to compete of any officer whose academic standing during his attendance at college or the U. S. Naval Academy was not in the first third of his class.

The Bureau will mail application blanks to those authorized to compete.

Navy Promotion Bill

FOLLOWING is a continuation from last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of the text of the Navy Department's proposed "Navy and Marine Corps Officers' Promotion Act of 1947."

Title I, contained in THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of 15 March, treated of the permanent provisions relating to officers of the Line. Title II, published 22 March, covered the permanent provisions relating to officers of the Staff Corps.

The following continues publication of Title III, treating of the terminable provisions of temporary rank relating to all officers of the Navy on active duty.

MARINE CORPS

Sec. 314. (a) Commissioned officers of the Marine Corps shall be authorized in number in the same proportion to authorized enlisted strength and shall be distributed in grades, promoted, retired, and discharged in like manner and with the same relative conditions in all respects as provided for commissioned officers of the line of the Navy, by existing law, or by laws hereafter enacted, except as may be necessary to adapt the said provisions to the Marine Corps, or as herein otherwise provided.

(b) Of the authorized number of commissioned officers above the grade of colonel, one shall be the commandant, two-thirds shall be brigadier generals, and the remainder shall be major generals.

(c) The number of brigadier generals designated for supply duty, including the officer serving as the head of the Supply Department, shall not exceed at any one time a number equal to 13 per centum of the number of general officers of the Marine Corps not restricted in the performance of duty authorized at that time.

(d) The total number of officers designated for supply duty in the combined grades of colonel, lieutenant colonel, and major shall not exceed at any one time a number equal to 8 per centum of the total number of officers not restricted in the performance of duty authorized in those grades at that time.

(e) Whenever a computation is made pursuant to sections 303 (g) and 314 (a) of this title to determine the authorized number of officers in the various grades of the Marine Corps, the Secretary of the Navy shall also determine within the number of officers so authorized in grades of major general and brigadier general, the number of naval avia-

Comments on Navy Bill

The following comments on the Navy Department's proposed promotion bill have been received by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

Lt. Col. USMC—"I think the Journal is rendering both officers and Congress a fine service in acting as intermediary whereby our views may be put on record in this manner."

"My comments relate to Section 304 (a), (d) and (f). As I understand the bill, these sec-

"(1) Direct that single lineal lists be established in the Navy and Marine Corps for Line officers, as has been already done in the Marine Corps (in order of present temporary seniority).

"(2) Prescribe quotas required to fill each permanent grade on the basis of permanent authorized strength, and authorized necessary adjustments of temporary rank so that, in effect, the temporary lineal list corresponds to a permanent lineal list as far as distributions in grade are concerned.

"(3) Provide for issuance of permanent appointments to convert the foregoing temporary ranks into permanent ranks.

"All my comments hereafter are premised upon these assumptions. If they are not exactly so stated in the sections I refer to, I believe that such procedure is elsewhere set up by the bill.

"In effect these provisions are a means of converting the present temporary lineal lists to permanent lists without the Navy Department's having to go through the laborious process of formally selecting or reselecting every Line officer of the Navy or Marine Corps up from his 1942 permanent rank to whatever he should now hold. In the great majority of cases this is a fair procedure, because virtually all officers now on active duty are Regulars who received en bloc promotions and advanced at an equal rate. Likewise, all such Regular officers as failed to prove themselves during the war have been subjected to involuntary retirement or reduction, so that these do not appear on the present temporary lineal list.

"It should be recalled by Congress, however, that when permanent Navy and Marine Corps promotions were suspended, it was the clear intent of that law that no officer's rights to eventual consideration for permanent rank would be altered or jeopardized due to the fact of failure of temporary selection, and that everyone would be entitled to his day in court prior to resumption of permanent promotions.

"As I have just indicated, most officers now on the temporary lineal lists do not need such reconsideration, but there are, never-

Coast Guard Welfare

BY REAR ADM. ELLIS REED-HILL, USCG
President, Coast Guard Welfare

Coast Guard Welfare, as presently constituted, is the successor to the League of Coast Guard Women. The league functioned as a voluntary relief society, composed solely of women interested in its purposes. The energy and devotion of the women at units throughout the country in raising funds and administering relief under the governing body, the Board of Control located in Washington, served effectively until the sudden tremendous increase in personnel of the Coast Guard for war. Under wartime conditions, heavy concentrations of personnel required an organization patterned closer to the military organization and more clearly under the control of the responsible military commander wherever located.

On the eve of the war in 1941, a constitution and by-laws for Coast Guard Welfare were promulgated and the society formed. With some recent changes, this form of an organization still stands. It may be said that its purpose is little different from that of the original League of Coast Guard Women.

The purpose of Coast Guard Welfare is to collect funds, hold, and use same for aid in time of need, for personnel of the Coast Guard, Public Health Service, and other services while assigned to active duty with the Coast Guard, and for those dependent upon them, and to otherwise counsel and advise in their welfare problems. Financial assistance is in the form of loans without interest, or grants as the circumstances require.

All Coast Guard personnel (active or retired) are eligible for membership, as are members of the Public Health Service and other services assigned to active duty with the Coast Guard, together with the adult members of their immediate families. All such members are eligible to vote, to hold office in Coast Guard Welfare, or to become members of the Board of Control. The annual dues for members is one dollar and effort is made during Coast Guard Welfare Week to obtain as large a number of members as possible.

Coast Guard Welfare has not been incorporated and the form of organization of Welfare is the Board of Control, District Directors, Units and Representatives. The Board of Control is composed of the President, Vice-President, and nine members, of which nine, not more than four and not less than two are men.

Members serve for three years and are elected by the District Directors. The President of Coast Guard Welfare is an officer on active duty at Coast Guard Headquarters and is selected upon the recommendation of the Board of Control, with the approval of the Commandant and the consent of the person selected. His term of office is limited to three years, without consecutive reelection. The Vice-President is the wife of the Commandant if the Commandant is married and she chooses to serve. The present officers and members of the Board of Control are as follows: Rear Admiral Ellis Reed-Hill, President; Mrs. J. F. Farley, Vice-President; Mrs. H. C. Sheppard, Secretary; Mrs. Merlin O'Neill, Assistant Secretary; Mrs. C. A. Arrington, Treasurer; Mrs. L. T. Chalker, Assistant Treasurer; Mrs. C. A. Anderson, Mrs. M. B. Flint, Rear Admiral P. M. Stewart, USPHS, Captain L. H. Baker, and Commander L. H. Morine.

The District Director is the Commander of a Coast Guard District or the Commanding Officer of an independent unit, with the approval of the board, and subject to the consent of the person appointed. If the Commander or Commanding Officer does not serve, he appoints an officer in his command for such duty. The District Director is responsible for welfare within his district or command, and appoints Representatives on ships and stations who are willing to perform this duty. The District Director is further authorized and encouraged to organize the establishment of Welfare Units in his district. Such Units operate under constitutions and by-laws not in conflict with the constitution for Coast Guard Welfare.

During the war while the Coast Guard served under the administration of the Navy Department no independent effort was made to raise funds and Coast Guard Welfare was dependent upon a proportionate share of the funds raised by the National Citizens Committee, headed by Mr. Clarence Dillon. Upon the Coast Guard being transferred back to the Treasury Department, certain of these funds have been made available and are now invested in Government bonds under the cognizance of the Board of Control. Coast Guard Welfare functions to assist cases similar to those handled by the Navy Relief Society, which includes generally emergent cases and not those of a recurring nature. In other words, welfare assistance in the field are cases of sickness, hospitalization, funeral expenses, non-receipt of pay or allowances, and travel in special cases such as critical illness or death of a wife or child where circumstances warrant. Coast Guard Welfare funds are not used simply to augment pay or pensions of any personnel.

It is the general policy that loans made in the field should not be made in an amount in excess of two hundred dollars without reference to the Board of Control, except that loans to total amount not in excess of three hundred dollars may be made for hospitalization, medical or surgical services, without such reference. It is also the practice to refer to the Board of Control outright grants which are in excess of two hundred dollars in any one case.

Close liaison is maintained with the American Red Cross and advantage is taken of the services of its personnel and trained investigators wherever it is indicated and available.

theless, a few Regular officers who, if the present law were to be passed as it stands, would suffer considerable injustice. They are the officers who were passed over for temporary appointment early in the war—usually on slight, or at least unequal grounds.

and were subsequently picked up, finally to be given clean bills of health by the involuntary retiring boards.

"Early in the war—until fairly late, in fact—large en bloc promotions were made, involving hundreds of numbers per group and reflecting years of peacetime seniority. At that time, as I understand it, the philosophy of non-selection for such promotion was that, if there was any question as to an individual, he should not be promoted, that is, that his eventual promotion should be held in abeyance pending clarification of his status or performance. Under this line of action, officers who had committed trivial derelictions, received slightly substandard fitness reports, or even had not appeared to have sufficient combat-experience for their grade, were passed over for temporary rank, with resultant loss of seniority amounting to hundreds of numbers. It was anticipated, of course, that all these pass-overs would be subject to eventual review and adjustment at the end of the war when permanent ranks were determined.

"As the war wore on, the criteria for selection changed materially, and much more deliberate procedures, even though for temporary rank, were adopted, so that, for those passed over later, the basis for such action really resembled that of a peacetime board.

"Thus it can be seen that

"(1) Selection or non-selection as carried out during the war for temporary rank were on varying bases and criteria, so that an officer passed over in 1943 might not have been passed over in 1945.

"(2) It seems to have been the original intention of Congress and the Department that such unavoidable inequities would be straightened out by some type of postwar re-

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Establishment and protection of peace through maintenance in accordance with our National needs and international commitments, of Regular Establishments organized, equipped and trained to utilize and employ modern materials of war, and coordinated with Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture and supply of such materials.
2. Scientific research to keep our lead in the atom bomb, guided missiles, and biological and radio active agents, and development of methods for their use and for defense against them, plus effective safeguards in secrecy.
3. The building up of the National Guard and Reserve components of the Armed Forces to their Congress and State authorized post-war strengths. Federally equipped, housed, and trained, effectively coordinated with the Regular Services, and with Universal Military Training to maintain their strengths.
4. Protection of active and retired pay to meet risen costs so as to enable maintenance of American standards of living: relief from pay reduction through income taxes; increase in per diem travel allowances; compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.
5. Enactment, after ample opportunity for study and comment by Service personnel in the field and with the Fleet, of legislation for orderly promotion systems in the Regular Establishments with recognition of war service and war ranks to prevent stagnation, and to insure the maintenance of high professional standards.
6. Continuation and expansion of Service Schools, including the National War College, Army-Navy Staff College, and the Industrial College.
7. Rank and retirement benefits for former Army enlisted personnel and Warrant Officers who served in war on same basis now accorded those of the other Armed Forces.
8. Upward revision of pension scales to insure Service widows and dependents a living income.

APPROVAL this week by President Truman of the bill establishing the Nurse Corps in the Army and Navy gives to the members of that essential body the permanent status and emoluments of commissioned officers, the right to which they demonstrated during the late War. Furthermore, it places the Medical Departments of the Armed Services in a better position to attract and hold the Nurses they need to carry on in peace the high character of medical care established during the war years. This recognition of the rights of Service Nurses might well be considered as a farewell tribute to Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, Chief of the Army Nurse Corps, who will be retired next month after 41 years of skillful and devoted service in her profession, 29 of which were in the Army. Her four years as Superintendent of the Corps were marked not only with singular success in her mission of establishing and maintaining efficient nursing care for the thousands of American sick and wounded soldiers all over the world but also with a constant concern over the welfare and professional fitness of every individual Nurse. When she turns her desk over to her successor, Lt. Col. Mary G. Phillips, next month, Colonel Blanchfield leaves behind her a high record of accomplishment and improvement. During her administration, basic training centers were established for newly appointed nurses, extensive moral building and recruiting activities were promulgated through the Army Nurse Branch of Technical Information which was set up in the Office of The Surgeon General, and the policy of assigning nurses to field and evacuation hospitals near the front lines to provide expert care immediately following front line surgery is now accepted as normal procedure. In 1944 Colonel Blanchfield was active with Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General of the Army, Rear Adm. Clifford A. Swanson, The Surgeon General of the Navy, and Capt. Sue S. Dauser, then Superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps, (who subsequently has been succeeded by Capt. Nellie Jane DeWitt), and with the continued active editorial support of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, in securing full military rank for nurses which was granted by Congress in July of that year on a temporary war basis. With the signature of the President this week, these principles have been written into permanent law, solidly establishing the foundation upon which the future of Service Nurses may be built. Ever grateful for the fine professional skill and devotion of the members of their Nurse Corps, the personnel of the Armed Forces give a proud salute to Colonel Blanchfield and wish her happiness in her well earned retirement.

RECALLING the bitter feeling and appeals to Congress that plagued the Regular Army concerning the positions on the promotion list allotted to officers assimilated following World War I, we suggest that the War Department immediately compile and publish to the Service an up-to-date promotion list including all those integrated under the post-war II programs. The latest list available to the Service is dated 1 January 1946, prior to the institution of either of the two integration programs authorized by the 79th Congress. Since that date there were taken into the Service 10,723 officers during the latter half of 1946 and 1,862 so far in 1947. The new Army Register, to be dated 1 Jan. 1947, will carry the promotion list numbers for the first integration only, but even that will not be issued from the Government Printing Office for "several months." It will be remembered that it was in matters of interpreting the law that led to the dissension and dissatisfaction after World War I. While today's law seems infinitely simpler of operation, it would be much better if the matter were fully understood now that Congress is about to consider the new promotion law. Already there is recognition of the need for corrections in procedure to avoid injustices to various categories of officers whose past services are not given enough credit to prevent them from being outranked by others with less Service. There are provisions in the newly proposed bill to alleviate some of these conditions. How much better it would be to set before the entire Service now the promotion list as authorized by existing law in order that all may have the opportunity to study its effect upon their standing and future so that all complaints may be discovered and brought before the Committees of Congress at once. In the event that Congress should approve the Department's recommendations concerning selection and forced retirements for length of service in grades and for failure to be selected it is more desirable than ever that there be no dissatisfaction over the placement of officers on the seven promotion lists which would be established by the proposed Act. The more sources of irritation that can be located and disposed of now the better it will be for the Department and Congress and the higher will be the morale and efficiency of the Army now being built.

Encore

Uncle and niece stood watching the young people dance about them.

"I'll bet you never saw any dancing like that back in the nineties, huh, uncle?"

"Once—but the place was raided."

—The Log.

Pained

A singer, giving a rendition of "My Old Kentucky Home," noticed a man in the audience weeping copiously. Afterward she sought him out.

"I noticed sir," she said, "that you seemed very sentimental during my song. Are you a Kentuckian?"

"No, madam," he replied. "I'm a musician."

—Camp Beale Bealiner.

Social Climber

Judge: "Your profession?"

Witness: "Agricultural expert."

"What was your father?"

"A farmer."

"And your grandfather?"

"A peasant."

—The Pointer.

New Angle

On the morning of a world series game an office boy braced his boss and started, "Sir, my grandmother . . ." The boss caught him short.

"Oh, come now, son, you don't think you are going to get away with that old chestnut about your grandmother having died?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. "She's home on furlough."

—Scott Field Broadcaster.

Wagon Covered

Olaf was a neighbor of mine in Denmark. He usually spent Saturdays evenings in town celebrating and early one Sunday morning staggered home and crawled under his wagon to sleep off the effects of his big evening.

In the morning his wife found him there, lying under the wagon in a heavy frost.

"Yump up out 'o there, Olaf," she called. "You'll catch your death of cold."

"Yumping yimminy," said Olaf, "it is cold. Throw on another wagon before I freeze."

—Camp Beale Bealiner.

Old Salt

A salesman in a rustic district noted that his prospect's grocery was stocked with nothing but salt.

"Hmm," he said, "You must sell lots of salt."

"Nah," replied the groceryman, "I don't sell no salt hardly at all. But the guy who sells it to me—HE sells lots of salt."

—Camp Lee Traveler.

Lacking Faith

A Negro preacher began his sermon: "Brethren and sisters, here you is comin' to pray for rain. I'd like to ask you one question: Where is yo' umbrellas?"

—Scott Field Broadcaster.

No Future

Officer to court-martialed GI: "Have you any last request to make before I give the firing squad the order to fire?"

GI: "Yes, does this mean that I can't re-enlist?"

—Belvoir Castle.

No further tests of Russian armor manufactured in this country will be made at the Indian Head station, where two trials have already been conducted by American naval officers out of courtesy to the Russian naval service. ATC Tests Seating Change

A project to determine passenger reaction to riding backward in planes was begun last October on the tri-weekly ATC transcontinental "Statesman" flight from Washington, D. C., to Fairfield, Calif.

The project was begun after a thorough survey had been made of opinions of AAF flight surgeons and aircraft accident reports. Both sources, the ATC says, revealed that the human body, properly supported, in many instances could withstand the decelerative shock occasioned by a crash landing.

Col. Woodruff Named CaribbeanA-4

Col. James A. Woodruff has been appointed Assistant Chief of Staff, A-4, at Headquarters, Caribbean Air Command. Colonel Woodruff has been commanding officer of the Panama Air Depot since May 1945.

Gen. Hutchison to SAC Staff

Brig. Gen. David W. Hutchison, USA, has been appointed to the staff of General George C. Kenney to direct operations and training of the Strategic Air Command.

General Hutchison served overseas from Jan. 1945 to Feb. 1947, holding various assignments including that of commanding general of the 308th Bombardment Wing during the war and the 314th Composite Wing at Kimpo, Korea, with occupation forces.

spectacular, but of greater overall importance, were the day-by-day regularly-scheduled operations of the 10 wartime Air Transport Divisions into every theater of war, carrying vitally needed supplies, personnel and morale benefits, such as mail, etc. Special mention should be afforded the gigantic program of air evacuation of the sick and wounded, which still continues. Important as were the air-lift operations, of equal or greater importance was the ferrying of combat aircraft. The importance and necessity of such strategic delivery, both for initial and replacement purposes, is clear cut. In a future emergency, certainly the requirement for this phase of strategic supply will be increased immeasurably.

In World War II, the major portion of the initial air transport effort was derived from the civil air carriers. In a future war emergency, it will probably be necessary to again divert civil air transport resources to the military task. The question may be asked, "Why do we not depend altogether upon the civil air transport industry for the performance of the strategic air transport mission?" The answer to this is that the civil air transport industry as presently constituted is concerned with the transportation of passengers and light cargo. It is extremely improbable in the foreseeable future that it will be possible for the civil air transport industry to develop an operation devoted to the carrying of heavy cargo similar to that which must be moved for the establishment and support of our military forces. The role of strategic air transport requires the development of a force with aircraft that can move efficiently the heavy types of cargo needed for the prosecution of a war. Obviously, the aircraft needed should have the greatest possible flexibility as far as the types of cargo can be transported are concerned, but they must be designed primarily for the handling of heavy equipment.

The Air Transport Command provides and operates these aircraft, maintaining a fleet for the primary purpose of affording strategic concentration and deployment in an emergency. At present the major portion of our effort is devoted to the secondary mission, that of support; in this case, of our occupational forces. Execution of this mission, however—three schedules daily to Tokyo and two to Europe—provides the very best training for the primary mission, permits retention of knowledge of routes, and maintains our line of air communications. The actual support rendered therefore becomes an economy rather than a cost.

But the Air Transport Command of today is not solely a strategic air transportation agency. Recent organizational expansion gave the Command jurisdiction over the Airways and Air Communications Service, Air Weather Service, Air Rescue Service, Aeronautical Chart Service and Flight Service. These services, primary requisites in global military air operations, serve to complement the transportation service by the very nature of their tasks. They too require unity of control at the highest level since global operation requires global direction. The grouping under a central authority here in Washington has climaxed the growth of Air Transport Command—an organization which stands ready today to provide immediately those world-wide strategic services and facilities which have become vital to the security of this nation.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—Delaying his interview with Premier Stalin until the need for a plain statement of American views about Soviet behavior should be proven, Secretary of State Marshall this week made his formal call at the Kremlin. It had been requested several days earlier and it was fortuitous (so far as the American request is concerned) that the actual meeting took place immediately after Mr. Molotov had made one of his most obstructive speeches, this time all but destroying the possibility of early agreement even on the pact to keep Germany disarmed—the one issue upon which it had previously seemed that Big Four agreement was assured. The delay in asking for an appointment at the Kremlin served the additional purpose of permitting an accumulation of subjects for discussion, including not only the many issues of the German and Austrian treaties, but the American program for Greek-Turkish aid, in which the Russian attitude is most pointedly involved, and the new program for aid to South Korea and the setting up of a separate government there if Russia continues her obdurate refusal to resume the negotiations broken off last May. The issues in Korea are suggestive of those in eastern Europe, and there is a reasonable presumption that Secretary Marshall found it possible to place before Premier Stalin a balanced statement of the American viewpoint upon all these area problems, and of America's firm decision to avoid aggression everywhere and to permit none by others in zones where American rights and responsibilities are involved. A full statement of Secretary Marshall's visit is being made to President Truman; at the moment there is no official indication of what portion of it will be made public, either in summary or in full text. In advance of formal announcement it is apparent that nothing in the way of immediate substance was gained by the interview, and that certainly there is no prospect of agreement upon the German treaty at the present Big Four conference, soon to close its Moscow session with painfully little accomplished. Yet from the Stalin-Marshall meeting there may develop useful results, if only from the clarity and completeness of the American Secretary's statement of American purposes and determinations. It was a long time since any such elucidation had been made for the Soviet chief of state, earlier presentations having been made to sub-chiefs who notoriously were already committed to a fixed program and wholly unable to stray from instructions. This time a reasoned discussion, illustrated by the current difficulties in Europe and Korea, has been offered to the head of government.

A minor irritation in the American zone of occupied Germany has been disposed of by Lt. Gen. Clarence Huebner, chief of staff to General Clay, in asking the Polish government to recall immediately the chief Polish liaison officer at American headquarters. Colonel Podwysocki had made himself obnoxious by a series of anti-American speeches which General Huebner informed Warsaw "cannot be tolerated by this headquarters." By the time the American request was made public the liaison officer had gone home and his government announced he would not return.

There is apparent a substantial sentiment favoring the grant of aid to Greece and Turkey. The Senate's vote is scheduled for next Tuesday with every likelihood of quick approval. Public support of the loan itself and in large measure of the entire White House policy has been crystallized and multiplied by the Wallace incident. Those who had been only lukewarm for the Truman plan exhibited indignation over the singular behavior of the former Vice President in going abroad to oppose a Presidential foreign policy at this critical season. It was behavior so singular that the British generally hastened to deny any sympathy for the wandering Mr. Wallace. The liberal Manchester Guardian observed sardonically that the British were "flattered, though a trifle surprised, to hear that they are the hope of the world," and found Mr. Wallace's views "more picturesque than exact." The London Times described the American's speech as "overdramatic" and said in special reproof that "no sober view justifies the imputation of aggressive intentions" on the part of the United States. Far as any such result can have been from Mr. Wallace's intentions, his singular toadying to a foreign audience has missed the target so widely as to assist Mr. Truman's program both at home and abroad.

The President has initiated action with regard to the Neutrality Act of 1939, whose Section 12 he wishes repealed, replacing it with a definite grant of certain discretionary powers. Under the proposed amendment the President would be permitted to distinguish between friendly and unfriendly powers in the grant of military equipment. This is intended to overcome the indiscriminate situation which was clearly helpful to Hitler until the Export Control act of 1940 (which expires on 30 June next) afforded temporary correction. The President also would be able to refuse export of goods, other than actual arms, whose export might affect United States security (scrap iron, for example, which notoriously aided Japan). The proposal is bound to call for intensive study in Congress.

Decision with regard to the distribution and disposition of some 239 lesser Japanese naval vessels is advanced by State Department announcement that such a number have been counted as ultimately available for disposal—these being destroyers and smaller escort and patrol vessels—with 140 ready for immediate delivery to the nations eligible to receive them. At the Navy Department there is a good deal of puzzlement over what will be done with the American share, apart from a very small number which have value as experimental materiel. The truth is that these vessels interest the Navy much less than they did two years ago, when the manner of disposition would have called for no discussion whatever.

On our own side of the Atlantic, it is interesting to learn that President Truman lately made a decidedly friendly gesture toward Argentina, whose differences with the United States have continued too long. On the eve of the departure of Ambassador Oscar Ivanissevich for Buenos Aires for a short trip of re-orientation, (comparable to Ambassador Messersmith's recent visit to Washington), Mr. Truman invited him to the White House, expressed his desire for better relationships and his hope that on the one troublesome issue (continued stay of Nazi agents in Argentina) the southern republic will soon find it possible to come to agreement. There is no alteration of the American policy: there is, however, an evidence of American desire for conciliation just as soon as a policy already accepted by Argentina is transformed into actual performance. If this comes to pass there will be a brighter respect for hemisphere solidarity, and incidentally an aid to the legislation, long sought by the War Department, for a common defense program in the Americas.

President Truman's action in personally calling upon former Secretary of State Cordell Hull this week at the Navy Medical Center and presenting him with the Medal for Merit recalls the skill with which that statesman made diplomacy "a powerful weapon in support of our armed strength" in the critical pre-war and war periods and the arduousness with which he worked to preserve the peace we won.

Promotion of Lt. Cols.—The latest compilation of vacancy figures for the Regular Army promotion shows 724 vacancies in the grade of colonel. This will leave 42 vacancies standing after the present nominations to that grade are confirmed.

Under ordinary circumstances a list to fill the outstanding vacancies would be sent up about one month following confirmation of the nominations now before the Senate. However, indications are that it will be considerable time before another list is sent up, particularly in view of the delay in resubmitting the list for many months because of the presence of the name of Lt. Col. James A. Kilian. The Senate committee was scheduled to take up the nominations in executive session yesterday, at which time it also had before it a protest from Colonel Kilian on the omission of his name from the list.

When this list was first submitted it contained the names of some 300 lieutenant colonels, among them Lt. Col. Kilian. Previous statements that Colonel Kilian was under court martial charges at the time of his nomination are in error, for while his nomination was confirmed and then recommitted in February of 1946, it was not until May that charges were actually preferred against him. The vacancy to which he normally would have been entitled, dated back to December of 1945.

In a letter this week to The Evening Star (Washington, D. C.) Col. Raymond E. Ford, Inf.-Res., Colonel Kilian's defense counsel who is now engaged in appealing the case before The Judge Advocate General of the Army, contends the unfairness of the failure to nominate his client. Colonel Ford writes:

"Unquestionable information is available that records of courts-martial were not included in any of the biographies of the 683 officers originally on the list from the War Department, and therefore, even assuming that the conviction of Colonel Kilian were legal and justified by evidence (which is not the case) and had finally been so held, it is not understood why nor how it should affect his eligibility and legal right to promotion, when the courts-martial of other officers on the same list were not considered."

"Further assuming that courts-martial of all officers on the list had been considered, the court-martial which tried Colonel Kilian, by the Articles of War, had the authority, commonly used, to reduce him on the promotion list of the Army, any number of files it chose, yet, observing all witnesses, hearing all evidence and, by its findings removing all guilty knowledge, actual or constructive, from Colonel Kilian of the occurrence of any wrongful acts of subordinates, it did not see fit to decree a sentence affecting his right to promotion."

"No, such a deletion of Colonel Kilian's name from the promotion list has denied him a deserved promotion to which he is entitled by law, record of service rendered his country, and performance of duty, as well as by seniority. In effect, it is a double punishment for the same alleged offense."

"It disregards existing United States law, specifically stated in Section 24 (a), National Defense Act (41 Stat. 771). This section provides for establishment of the promotion list of the Army and concludes as follows: * * * other officers on original appointment shall be placed at the foot of the list. The place of any officer on the promotion list once established shall not thereafter be changed, except as the result of sentence of a court-martial."

"Such action by the President, directly contrary to the express provisions of existing law, removes the dispensation of justice within the armed forces out of the hands of courts-martial and places it upon a political basis."

Army Reserve—The War Department announced 11 April that officers on active duty are now authorized to receive commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps while remaining on active federal service in their AUS rank. They will be eligible for the highest Reserve Officers rank to which at present entitled. The new policy will affect approximately 50,000 officers in the Army from components other than Regular Army.

In a ceremony at the Pentagon Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, the Adjutant General of the Army, presented the first seven reserve officers commissions to be given to officers while still on active duty. Brig. Gen. Edward A. Evans, Executive Director of the Reserve Officer Association, attended the ceremony to extend congratulations to the officers after they took the oath of office.

The officers receiving the commissions and in some instances promotions in the Reserve Corps were: Col. Sidney F. Mashbir, former Chief of Allied Translator and Interpreter Section in the Pacific; Lt. Col. Matthew J. Bartosik, promotion to Colonel in the Reserve Corps; Col. Charles Maylon, Col. Air Corps Reserve; Lt. Col. William McKinley Clarkson, promotion to Col. in the Reserve Corps; Lt. Col. Ralph D. Foster, Lt. Col., Reserve Corps; Maj. Adam G. Rut, promotion to Lt. Col., Reserve Corps; Capt. Christopher T. Bardenhagen, Capt., Reserve Corps.

The new authorization will be ready for general distribution in the near future. Officers will apply for the Reserve Officer Commissions on their own initiative, and will continue to serve on active duty in their Army of the United States appointments.

Army Air Forces Reserve officers and enlisted men can participate in part-time training at bases near their homes with Regular AAF personnel under a new training plan supplementing the Air Reserve's budget-trimmed program to keep war-time AAF personnel at combat efficiency levels. Under the new program, additional former AAF pilots, crew members, and ground personnel can take part in training at Regular AAF bases if they cannot train at one of the 41 Air Reserve detachments throughout the United States which offer inactive training to thousands of Reservists each year. Of the original 70 Air Reserve detachments which trained AAF Reserve ground and flying personnel, 29 have been inactivated as a result of budget cuts.

Air base commanders will fill existing table of organization vacancies in Regular units with Reservists who volunteer for the integrated training. Flight training in almost all types of aircraft will be offered in the new training program. Ground personnel will receive advanced training in the AAF Military Occupational Specialty to which they were assigned upon separation from the service.

AAF base commanders will advise Air Reservists living near active stations to arrange for assignments and convenient training schedules. The Air Reserve training program is administered by Lieutenant General George E. Stratemeyer, commanding general of Air Defense Command with headquarters at Mitchel Field, N. Y. Air Reservists soon will be able to obtain further information from commanders of Regular AAF bases nearest their homes in areas not served by Air Reserve detachments.

Col. George A. Wardinski was presented the Army Commendation Ribbon 11 April by Col. Ira W. Black, Senior Instructor, ORC, State of Connecticut. The award was for meritorious service performed 7 Feb. to 31 Aug. 1946 as Assistant Inspector General, Headquarters, Yokohama Base, Japan.

Next Army Nurse Corps Superintendent—An early announcement is expected naming a successor to Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps, who is retiring about 31 March.

Although no official statement has been made it is understood that the post will go to Lt. Col. Mary G. Phillips, Deputy Chief of the Nursing Division. Colonel Phillips served as Director of Nurses in the Pacific Theater. Before her Far East assignment she was deputy to Colonel Blanchfield, a post to which she returned from overseas. Her selection as head of the Army Nurse Corps would be one bringing to that service a wealth of experience of the type required, both from her service in the field and as Colonel Blanchfield's deputy.

National Guard—Plans for the summer training of all ground units of the National Guard which are sufficiently organized, manned and equipped have been approved by the War Department. A 15-day field training period has been scheduled for all divisions and regimental combat teams whose integral units were federally recognized by 15 April. In order to be eligible, these units also must be self-sustaining in the field, must reach an aggregate strength equivalent to 30 per cent of their table of organization strength by 15 May, and must be able to muster at least 20 per cent of their table of organization strength for the duration of the training period.

The type of training to be undertaken consists of individual and specialist training, including small arms familiarization firing, and small unit training through the platoon or section level. In addition to divisions and regimental combat teams, other ground units may, at the discretion of State authority and in coordination with Army commanders, also attend a 15-day period, provided they meet the same conditions as those relating to the aforementioned groups. If funds are available, the National Guard Bureau may authorize the states to conduct local schools or training for those ground units which do not qualify for the field training.

In a recent statement on the aims of the National Guard, Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, said:

"In accordance with the American tradition that the best Army is a citizens army, our military leaders have planned a national defense force of a comparatively small Regular Army with a strong National Guard and Organized Reserve Corps."

"The National Guard today is dedicating its every effort to the establishment of an effective force which will be immediately available in any emergency, to keep our nation strong and secure while it seeks to establish the orderly process which can bring a permanent peace."

Units of the reorganized Michigan National Guard had their first opportunity to serve in time of disaster last week when they were called to duty to aid flood-stricken areas under Governor Kim Sigler's "State of Emergency" order. Major National Guard activity occurred at Lansing when all units of the 119th Field Artillery Battalion from Lansing, Grand Lodge and Charlotte were ordered to duty. A small detachment was also on duty in Flint. National Guard commanders at Kalamazoo and Coldwater were alerted, but it was not necessary to call these units to duty.

Federal recognition has been given to 95 additional National Guard units, 91 ground and four air.

Adjutant General's Department—A course dealing with administration and management of civilian employees was given last month to 95 officers and non-commissioned officers and 136 civilian supervisors of Headquarters, First Army. The training was presented by the Civilian Personnel Division of the Adjutant General's Office. Col. C. W. Christenberry, Adjutant General of the First Army, said this week that the course was offered in order that operating officials and supervisory personnel might have a better understanding of the functions pertaining to the administration and management of civilian employees.

Lt. Col. Paul R. Andrews, AGD, chief of the Army Postal Service, left the Pentagon this week for the separation center at Ft. Dix. After leaving the service, he will return to Washington to accept a position with the Office of the Postmaster General. Lt. Col. George T. Bleakley, AGD, assistant to Col. Andrews, will be the new chief of the Army Postal Service.

Col. Clifton C. Carter, AGD, and Lt. Col. George G. Wolfe, AGD, will return to Washington for duty with the Personnel Bureau of The Adjutant General's Office upon completion of the course at the Adjutant General's School at Carlisle Barracks the latter part of this month.

Finance Department—Brig. Gen. Eugene M. Foster, Assistant Chief of Finance, will leave Washington shortly for an inspection trip of Army Finance activities in European Command.

Lt. Col. Golden P. Kratz was assigned as Chief of the Contract Insurance Branch, Special Financial Services Division, OCF, last week vice Maj. Clarence A. Stark, relieved. Colonel Kratz recently returned from two years of service with the Military Government organization in Heidelberg, Germany.

Maj. Charles D. Waldecker, Assistant Executive Officer, OCF, and Capt. Henry E. Bates, Chief of the Finance Training Branch, Management Division, OCF, returned to Washington last week upon completion of temporary duty at the Army Finance Center, OCF, St. Louis, Mo. in connection with general administrative and training matters.

Judge Advocate General's Department—Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, The Judge Advocate General, testified this week before the House Armed Services Committee, on the War Department's bill to amend the Articles of War.

The Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit has been awarded posthumously to Brig. Gen. Edward C. Betts, for his services as Theater Judge Advocate, United States Forces, European Theater. The medal and citation were presented recently to Mrs. Betts, at her home in Washington, by The Judge Advocate General.

Lt. Col. Robert E. Joseph has departed from JAGO for his new station, U. S. Military Mission in Iran, at Teheran.

Lt. Col. Henry C. Urquhart, recently integrated in the Regular Army, has reported to JAGO from his home, and has been assigned to Military Affairs Group. Capt. Donald T. Ruby has been relieved from Military Reservations Group and assigned to Military Justice Group.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Dr. Georges Portmann, prominent French physician and Professor of Otorhinolaryngology at the University of Bordeaux, France, was the guest speaker at a lecture 17 April in the auditorium of the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. This was the eighth in a series of lectures sponsored by the Naval Medical School. The title of the lecture given by Dr. Portmann was, "The Surgical Treatment of Carcinoma of the Pharynx, Larynx, and Base of Tongue."

Officers of the Army and Navy Medical Corps, Public Health, Veterans' Administration and civilian doctors of the District of Columbia and Montgomery County were invited to attend this lecture after which refreshments were served with the Medical Department Officers of the Center acting as hosts.

Army and Navy Chaplains—The Executive Committee of the Chaplains' Association of the Army and Navy of the United States announces the cancellation of the Seventeenth Annual Convention and Training Conference of the Chaplains Association of the Army and Navy of the US. The Association was scheduled to meet in San Antonio, Texas, 6-9 May. The next Convention of the Association will be held in New York during May 1948.

Army Ground Forces—General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces, spoke in Allentown, Pa., 18 April at a banquet of the Honorary First Defenders of Allentown.

General Walter Krueger, retired World War II Sixth Army Commander, will speak at the weekly AGF staff officers session at Ft. Monroe, 21 April.

The Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptional meritorious and distinguished service from 6 February to 8 May 1945" while serving as Commanding General, 71st Infantry Division, was awarded to Maj. Gen. Willard G. Wyman, Chief, G-2 Section, 11 April by General Devers.

Col. John E. Leary, Chief, Electronics and Communications Branch, Developments Section, will conduct a series of lectures and discussions on Communications and Electronics Development Program for Army Ground Forces at three AGF Boards 28 April-9 May. Col. Leary will appear at AGF Boards 2, Ft. Knox, Ky., 3, Ft. Benning, Ga., and 4, Ft. Bliss, Tex.

Teaming with Maj. Edward A. Caskey, Intelligence Department, the Ground General School, Ft. Riley, Kans., Col. Donald F. Hall, Psychological Warfare Division, G-2, will deliver a 6-hour presentation on Psychological warfare to students at the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, the Artillery School, Ft. Sill, and the Armored School, Ft. Knox, 18 April-9 May.

Navy Nurse Corps—Lt. Comdr. Margarette Ann Orr (NC) USN will report to the hospital at Dublin, Ga., upon leaving the hospital at Oakland, Calif.

Lt. Comdr. Alma C. Ballantyne (NC) USN and Lt. Rosa Jeanette Delfs (NC) USN leave the hospital at Corona, Calif., for duty aboard the Naval Transport, USS General A. E. Anderson, in use now for transporting Naval dependents to and from stations overseas.

Lt. Comdr. Mary Jane Brown (NC) USN on duty with the Navy Nurse Corps since Dec. 1941 and engaged in flight nursing for many months, leaves Flight Squadron VR-1 for duty with Squadron VR-3.

Lt. Comdr. Iva Amanda Thompson (NC) USN goes to the hospital at Oakland, Calif., from duty aboard the USS General A. E. Anderson.

Lt. Comdr. Ruth Juanita Mitchell and Lieut. (Jg.) Dorothy Louise Briscoe, both members of the regular Nurse Corps, U. S. Navy, leave the hospital at Bremerton, Wash., to report for dispensary duty at Manila, Philippine Islands.

Lt. Comdr. Lois Eva Brown of the Regular Nurse Corps leaves the dispensary at the Naval Supply Depot in Oakland, Calif., for dispensary duty at the Naval Station, Treasure Island.

Transportation Corps—The following agenda for the annual Transportation Corps conferences to be held at the different Army Headquarters, 28 April thru 11 June:

First Army Headquarters, N. Y. City, 28, 29, 30 April; Second Army Headquarters, Baltimore, Md., 1, 2, 3 May; Third Army Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga., 7, 8, 9 May; Fourth Army Headquarters, San Antonio, Texas, 19, 20, 21 May; Sixth Army Headquarters, San Francisco, Calif., 26, 27, 28 May; Sixth Army, Seattle, Wash., 2, 3, 4 June; Fifth Army Headquarters, Chicago, 9, 10, 11 June.

Purpose of these conferences, which will be held annually, will be to conduct discussions on transportation subjects by selected personnel from the Office of the Chief of Transportation.

Signal Corps—Col. Charles B. Brown, Director of the Extension Course Department, Signal Corps School, at Fort Monmouth has been named Post Executive Officer succeeding Lt. Col. James V. Carroll who becomes Commanding Officer of the Signal Training Regiment.

Lt. Col. James F. Brooke, Jr., has been assigned as Director, Signal Corps Publications Agency succeeding Col. Louis J. Tatom, now Acting Director of the Army-Navy Electronics and Electrical Standards Agency.

An advanced on-the-job training course in the repair of cameras and sound projector equipment has been initiated at the Holabird Signal Depot in Baltimore. This is an innovation in Signal Corps procedure since this type of training has normally been conducted at one of the larger commercial concerns.

Marine Corps—Reserve units for the training of Amphibian Tractor operators, Howitzer teams, and Marine Engineers are among those recently announced by Headquarters.

The Twelfth Amphibian Tractor Battalion, with Lt. Col. Edward A. Clark, USMCR, in command, was established in San Francisco. In Portland, Ore., the Fourth 105mm Howitzer Battalion will be headed by Maj. Douglas W. Polivka, USMCR, who will organize that unit and the Seventeenth Engineer Company as well.

The Marine Corps Supply Depot, Oahu, T. H., including the Asiatic-Pacific Warehousing and Stock Control Detachment, was transferred from Marine Garrison Forces, Pacific, to the military command of Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, on 28 March.

SERVICE SOCIAL NEWS

MISS Nancy Anderson, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Anderson, who was the Cherry Blossom Queen at the Festival last Sunday was the guest in compliment to whom Col. and Mrs. Curt Schiffeler entertained at dinner that evening.

Among the guests were the White House Aides who acted as escorts for the Queen and her ladies in waiting who were also of the dinner party. Lt. Col. James H. Batte was present as were Lt. Col. Victor L. Cary, Maj. Burnside E. Huffman, Maj. Lewis N. Ellis, Maj. Ernest C. Atkin, Lt. Comdr. Hoke Sisk, Capt. Harry Heintzelman, Capt. Lawrence A. Adams, Jr., Capt. D. Johnson, Lt. Sam A. Morrow, Lt. George W. Williams, Lt. William H. Langan, Lt. Cloyd V. Hines, Lt. William F. Goggin and Lt. Arthur C. Frazier.

The Engineer Commissioner and Mrs. Gordon Young and Mr. Thomas P. Morgan, Jr., who was chairman of the festival, were also present.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Eugene M. Foster were among Sunday's hosts, entertaining at cocktails, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. H. A. Stuart also welcomed guests at the late afternoon hour. Their party was in compliment to the Surgeon General of the Navy and Mrs. Swanson, and among the guests were Admiral and Mrs. James C. Richardson, Vice Adm. and Mrs. Earle W. Mills, Mrs. Louis Denfeld, Rear Adm. and Mrs. John J. Manning, Rear Adm. and Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, Rear Adm. and Mrs. H. L. Hugh, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William N. Thomas, and Capt. and Mrs. Francis Ulen.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. Philip B. Eaton will entertain at dinner tonight at their home in compliment to Mrs. M. D. Howell. Last week they entertained at the Army-Navy Club for Mrs. Oscar Dressler of New York.

Col. and Mrs. Sidney G. Brown entertained Col. and Mrs. James R. Manees and their daughter, Mrs. C. P. Powell, at a cocktail party, Saturday afternoon, 12 April. Colonel and Mrs. Manees have purchased a home in Bradenton, Fla., where they expect to reside. Fifty guests attended.

Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, retiring superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps and three of her conferees in the Service were honor guests at a dinner given by Lt. Col. Elizabeth B. Mahoney, director of Nurses in the Office of the Air Surgeon General at the Officers' Club at Andrews Field. It was a dove party and Mrs. John M. Hargraves, wife of the Deputy Surgeon General was of the company.

The Army War College was also the scene of a young persons' party last Friday, the Officers' Club being the rendezvous for the Junior Army-Navy Cotillion Group, sponsored by the class of 1924, of the Military Academy. Col. and Mrs. Joseph A. Morris headed the receiving line and invited Maj. Gen. and Mrs. E. E. Partridge, Col. and Mrs. Leslie Fletcher, and Col. and Mrs. Edward White to receive with them. Junior hosts and hostesses included Miss Laura Mead Morris, who led the cotillion with Howard Arnold Jr., the Misses Patricia Partridge, Bobby Wells, Ellen Anding, Gail Hall, Messrs. Arthur Trudeau, Jr., Edward White Jr., Allen and Fred Henney and Michael Collins.

The Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., had as weekend guest Mrs. Nora Whitney of Hartford, Conn., who was among those they entertained at dinner Friday evening last.

There was born to Marie Satterlee Bryant, and Dean Bryant, at Vallejo, Calif., on 4 April, a daughter.

Mrs. Bryant was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent at Menlo Park, Calif., in 1945. Her father, Captain Satterlee (MC, USN-Ret.), was graduated from George Washington University Medical School in 1917, and he has many classmates in San Francisco.

A wedding reception followed the ceremony at "Carvel Hall" home of the bride's parents near Lorton, Va.

Miss Judith Ament Davidson, daughter of Vice Admiral Loyal Ament Davidson, USN (ret.), and Mrs. Davidson was married 12 April, to Maj. Anthony Walker, USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Read Walker of Washington. The wedding took place in St. John's Church with the uncle of the bride, the Rev. Deval Gwathmey of Wytheville, Va., officiating, assisted by the rector of the Church, the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, the altar and chancel decorated with stock, snapdragons and gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in trailing white satin cut with off-the-shoulder neckline and sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her exquisite veil of rose point was an heirloom from her great grandmother, and the pearl cross she wore was a family jewel given by her mother. Her bouquet was of white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Alexander McCubbin Carey attended her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants were Miss Margaret Spruance and Mrs. Kenneth Wallace, Newport, R. I., Mrs. Wilbur R. Helmer, Quantico, Va., and Mrs. William Davidson. James T. Bryan, Jr., Suosset, Long Island, was best man. Ushers were Maj. Forbes Bastian, USMC, and Maj. Wilbur R. Helmer, Quantico, Richard Storm, Westport, Conn.; Maj. Valentine E. Diehl, USMC, Buffalo, N. Y.; Andrew B. Duvall, Jr., Rockville, Md., and Robert Neuffer, New York.

A reception followed at the 1925 F Street Club.

Following a Southern honeymoon the couple will reside at the W. B. Lee estate, Widewater, Va., and Major Walker will continue his duty at the Marines Corps School, Quantico.

The bride attended Sweet Briar College, was active in Jango and was associated with the Bureau of National Affairs, Inc.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Yale University and served with the Sixth Marine Division in the Pacific.

Many old army friends will be interested in the marriage of Carol Beatrice Swindler, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry O. Swindler of Tokyo, and Lt. Harold Miles Sluder, MC, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sluder of Asheville, N. C., 12 April in Tokyo.

The ceremony was at 4 o'clock at St. Lukes Chapel, and the reception was at the General Headquarters Officers' Club in the old Mitsui Mansion.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Chaplain Frazier, who has known Carol since childhood, performed the ceremony assisted by Chaplain Helm.

The bride's attendants were daughters of her parents' friends of early Army days. The maid of honor was Miss Frances Campbell, daughter of Col. W. F. Campbell. The bridesmaids were Betsy Mueller, daughter of General Paul Mueller, Frances Case, daughter of Col. Robert Case, Pat Shattuck, daughter of Col. Milton Shattuck, and Betty Vandergrift, daughter of Col. Vandergrift.

Lt. Sluder had as his best man Lt. Charles Keuper, MC. The ushers were Capt. W. L. Harrelson, Aide de Camp to General Mueller, Capt. Harry Lerner, MC, Capt. Stanley Zellman, MC, and Capt. Carl Bergert, Asst. Staff Judge Advocate.

General and Mrs. Robert Eichelberger represented the bridegroom's family from Asheville.

There were many lovely pre-nuptial parties honoring the bride and bridegroom.

Lt. and Mrs. Sluder will live temporarily with the bride's parents.

At the bride's home in Little Falls Road, Arlington, Va., Miss Virginia Rose Saegmuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall Saegmuller, became the bride of Lt. William Harlough Knoll, Jr., USN, attached to the USS Pomodone, Mare Island, Calif.

The ceremony was performed at four o'clock 12 April at an improvised altar of white snapdragons against Australian ferns before a picture window, lighted with candles. A reception followed.

Clad in white satin with short train, fitted bodice and long sleeves, and with short tulle veil and lace cap, the bride was given in marriage by her father.

She was attended by her sister, Barbara Ann, as maid of honor. The matron of honor was Mrs. Harry Clifton Ames, Jr., another sister of the bride.

Lt. William W. Behrens, Jr., now assigned to USS Quillback, New London, Conn., and a room mate of the bridegroom at the U. S. Naval Academy, served him as best man. Lt. David De Huff, another room mate, now in P. G. School at Annapolis, acted as an usher. The bride is a graduate of George Washington University and University of Michigan. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Lt. Knoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Knoll of Tampa, Fla., attended Marion Institute, Marion, Ala., and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy. He has had twenty months' submarine duty in the Pacific, and was awarded the Silver Star.

After a short honeymoon jaunt, the young couple left for Mare Island, where they will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis Gall of 13503 78th Road, Flushing, Long Island, N. Y., announce the marriage of their daughter, Viola, to John P. Neu, Colonel, QMC, at 3:00 p.m. on the 9th of April.

The ceremony was performed by Chaplain (Col.) Patrick B. Fay, at the home of the bride's parents. Chaplain Fay served with Colonel Neu in France for two and a half years. Capt. Thomas Milan, who also served with Colonel Neu, was the best man. Miss Dorothy Economy was the maid of honor.

The bride, a graduate of Briarwood College, is a former field representative of the American Red Cross, and had been stationed in England and France for over two years.

Colonel Neu, the Commanding Officer of the Charlotte Quartermaster Depot, returned to the United States last Christmas after 32 months' service in the European Theater. Colonel and Mrs. Neu will reside at Hotel Barringer.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Guy B. Wilder of Lafayette, Ind., and Andalusia, Ala., formerly of Ft. Knox, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Polly Lou, to George Sidney Waits, Jr. The marriage to take place 20 June in the First Baptist Church, Andalusia, Ala.

Miss Wilder will be graduated from Judson College in May. Mr. Waits is a prominent business man of Andalusia. He attended the University of Alabama prior to and after his three and a half years in the service.

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, T. H.

28 March 1947

Thirty-eight years of activity at the army's largest overseas installation were celebrated 24 March at Schofield Barracks. Organization day actually was 23 March but since it was Sunday the celebration was held on Monday instead.

On 23 March, 1909, the War Department ordered the national flag raised on the post and named the military site in honor of Lt. Gen. John M. Schofield, commander of the Army of the Ohio in the Civil war.

Second annual sunrise service in Kololele pass will be held by Schofield Barracks on Easter Sunday at 5:45 a.m. At the summit of the pass a white cross was erected in 1946 and steps built into the face of the cliff to mount to the worship area. A platform for the band and speakers was constructed this year. More than 10,000 persons are expected to witness the 1947 service and will include both military and civilian personnel of Oahu.

Lt. Col. Earl Compton, AGFPAC Chaplain from Ft. Shafter, will deliver the sermon. The Unrecognized Christ. Music for the service will be furnished by the 118th AGP band of Schofield Barracks. Chaplain (Maj) Daniel Trevitt of Schofield Barracks will give the invocation and Chaplain (Lt.) Francis L. Garrett, USN, Pearl Harbor will read the Scripture.

HDQ., FIFTH ARMY

Chicago, Illinois

14 April 1947

Dedication services to mark the opening of the new chapel for Fifth Army Headquarters, 1600 East Hyde Park Boulevard, were conducted 11 April. The chapel is located in Room 440 of the Headquarters installation and will be utilized to conduct all Christian services for military personnel in the area.

The chapel was designed by Robert O. Burton, Fifth Army staff artist, and constructed with the assistance of members of the 728th Military Police Battalion from Fort Sheridan.

The Protestant dedication services opened with a prayer by Col. Peter C. Schroeder, Chief of Chaplains, for the Fifth Army. The Rev. Ray Freeman Jenney, DD LL.D, President of the Chicago Church Federation presented the scripture and prayer of dedication. Dedication was made by the Rt. Rev. Wallace E. Conkling, DD STD, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, Auxiliary of the Chicago Archdiocese, offered the Apostolic blessing during the Catholic services. The dedication was made by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Martin J. Nealis, who represented Francis Cardinal Spellman. The opening prayer was made by Maj. James C. Lane, Assistant Chaplain, Fifth Army Headquarters.

ObituaryCol. Frederick M. Barrows, USA-Ret.

Col. Frederick Monroe Barrows, USA-Ret., died 14 April at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., where he had been a patient since last December. Interment, with full military honors, was at Arlington National Cemetery following services at the Fort Myer Chapel, 16 April.

Retired in March, 1938, Colonel Barrows returned to active duty 1 Dec. 1940. He was assigned to the command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where he served until 31 Dec. 1945 as Librarian and editor of the "Military Review." Changing this famous publication from a quarterly to a monthly magazine, Colonel Barrows, in 1944, developed the Central and South American Spanish and Brazilian Portuguese editions of this publication in furtherance of the "Good Neighbor" policy.

Born in Connecticut 3 July 1880, Colonel Barrows entered the Army as a private in Company K, 32nd Michigan Infantry in June 1898. Commissioned a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery, in January 1908, he was appointed a major of Field Artillery in the National Army in World War I in Aug. 1917, and, serving in combat in France, rose to lieutenant colonel in the National Army in June 1918. Colonel Barrows was promoted to the permanent grade of Colonel in Sept. 1936. His last command before retirement in 1938 was the 2nd Field Artillery, then stationed in Panama.

Graduated from Hamilton College in New York with Bachelor of Philosophy and Master of Philosophy degrees, Colonel Barrows received his Ph. D. from Georgetown in 1934. He was a distinguished graduate of the Command and General Staff School, and of the Army War College.

Colonel Barrows is survived by his widow, Mrs. Floyd R. Barrows, a daughter, Mrs. Margaret B. Morton, and a granddaughter, Anne Howard Morton, all of Washington, D. C. Pallbearers for the funeral were: Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell, Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, Brig. Gen. Alden G. Strong, Brig. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, Brig. Gen. Robert C. McDonald, Brig. Gen. Guy B. Denit, Col. Langley Whitley, and Col. Henry P. Carter.

Comments on Navy Bill

arrangement as required for permanent rank. "Now, after all this lengthy preamble, here is what has happened—in the Marine Corps, and in one grade (lieutenant colonel). It is presumed that similar situations in other grades and the Navy will likewise exist.

"In the present group of lieutenant colonels, after the forced retirement of all officers deemed unfit on the basis of their overall records, approximately 15 officers remain who were passed over for temporary rank early in the war, were subsequently picked up with loss of temporary seniority, and whose overall records were found satisfactory by the involuntary retiring boards. In the cases of these officers, it should be noted that their temporary precedence (i.e., position of the present temporary lineal list) is much below their permanent precedence. That is, you have officers holding permanent rank, say, as first lieutenants in the class of 1937, who likewise hold temporary appointments as lieutenant colonels in or with officers of the class of 1939, who are permanent second lieutenants.

"As you can see, if the present bill is passed as is, these officers will all be demoted in permanent rank according to their wartime temporary loss of precedence, and without any final judgment on their cases or on their overall war records. That is, a temporary loss of several hundred numbers, perhaps imposed upon incomplete or hasty considerations during the war, will be frozen, without further recourse or reconsideration, into a permanent loss of years of precedence.

"I made an informal analysis, based upon such data as was at hand, as to the individual cases of the few officers in this situation. I find, for example, that at least six of these have received combat decorations, ranging from Navy Crosses down, since the time of their nonselection, and that these officers, at least in my judgment, had records which were as good, and in general better than the average of their original classmates. In other words, the overall verdict of war was that their original nonselection did not accord with their capabilities when put to test.

"In justice to these few officers, therefore, I believe that before the present temporary lineal list is frozen into permanency, there should be a review of all wartime nonselections which applied to officers now remaining on the active list, with a view to restoring those who made good to their original positions. To this end, I submit the following draft of proposed amendment to the bill which would establish such reviewing procedure:

"To the final sentence of Section 304 (a), add the following proviso:

"And Provided Further. That, prior to final establishment of the single lineal list provided by this Section, the Secretary of the Navy is directed to review the cases of all active officers who, due to failure of selection for temporary promotion, hold lower temporary rank upon such lineal list than that now held by officers of contemporary permanent rank, and he is hereby authorized to effect, in the cases of such officers whose war service so merits, necessary temporary appointments to restore these officers to temporary lineal positions in accordance with their permanent rank and precedence."

Please send in notice of your change of address promptly.

tors required in each of those grades to meet the needs of the service, and the numbers so determined shall constitute the authorized number of naval aviators in those grades until the next computation is made. Temporary promotions to fill vacancies on the basis of the numbers so determined shall be made from naval aviators of the next lower respective grades in the manner herein prescribed for the temporary promotion of other officers of those grades of the Marine Corps not restricted in the performance of duty.

(f) Selection boards shall consist of nine officers of the active list of the Marine Corps, the composition of the boards to be determined by the Secretary of the Navy: Provided, That no officer shall be recommended for temporary promotion or for continuation on the active list unless he shall have received the recommendation of not less than two-thirds of the members of the board: Provided further, That whenever there are insufficient general officers available to comprise a selection board for the recommendation of officers for temporary promotion to the grades of brigadier general and colonel without placing thereon general officers who served as members of the same corresponding board the preceding year, officers of the active list of the line of the Navy, not restricted in the performance of duty, of the grade of rear admiral may be substituted for general officers of the Marine Corps in order to comply with the provisions of section 305 (a) (2) of this title: Provided further, That selection boards to recommend brigadier generals for temporary promotion to major general shall be composed of officers of the permanent grade of major general on the active list of the Marine Corps to the extent that such officers are deemed available for this duty by the Secretary of the Navy, and the remainder of the board shall be composed of rear admirals on the active list of the line of the Navy, not restricted in the performance of duty: And provided further, That administrative staff duty performed by any officer under appointment or detail, and duty in aviation, or in any technical specialty, shall be given weight by the selection board in determining his fitness for promotion equal to that given to line duty equally well performed.

(g) Whenever officers designated for supply duty are eligible for consideration by a selection board for temporary promotion or for continuation on the active list, the Secretary of the Navy shall appoint, as alternate members of the appropriate selection board, three officers of that designation, and if there be not three available, he shall so appoint such lesser number as may be available, and the junior members of the board who are not restricted in the performance of duty, in like number, shall not act upon the cases of officers designated for supply duty. No such alternate member shall act upon the cases of officers other than those designated for supply duty. No officer designated for supply duty or for limited duty shall act upon the cases of officers not restricted in the performance of duty.

(h) Temporary promotion to major general shall be from brigadier generals who are not restricted in the performance of duty, and such officers shall be eligible for consideration by a selection board for temporary promotion to major general when they will have completed on June 30 of the fiscal year of the convening of the board four years' service in that grade: Provided, That service in grade shall include all service in that or a higher grade whether under temporary or permanent appointment thereto: And provided further, That an officer who has lost numbers or precedence shall not be eligible for such consideration until an officer junior to him in the grade of brigadier general who has not lost numbers or precedence becomes eligible.

(i) The promotion zone in the grade of brigadier general for officers not restricted in the performance of duty shall be established by the Secretary of the Navy as of the date of the convening of a selection board to consider officers of that grade for recommendation for temporary promotion to the next higher grade. It shall consist of that number of the most senior such officers of the grade of brigadier general who are eligible for selection for temporary promotion to the next higher grade and have not previously failed of such selection, which must be either selected for temporary promotion by the particular board or be considered as having failed of such selection, in order to maintain a flow of promotion consistent with the needs of the service and to best assure to individuals in succeeding years equality of opportunity for promotion. The number shall be determined by the Secretary of the Navy and shall be based upon a consideration of the estimated number of vacancies which will occur in the next higher grade for each of the ensuing five years and the number of such officers who will be eligible for selection.

(j) In furnishing the appropriate selection board with the number of officers in the grades of colonel and brigadier general, not restricted in the performance of duty, to be recommended for temporary promotion, the Secretary of the Navy shall determine and shall inform the appropriate selection board of the number of naval aviators of each of those grades which the board may recommend for temporary promotion to the next higher respective grades to meet the needs of the service.

(k) The provisions of this title relating to the selection of rear admirals for continuation on the active list shall not be applicable to major generals.

(l) Should it be found, as of the time of the convening of a board for the consideration of brigadier generals for temporary promotion to the grade of major general, that the number of vacancies existing plus the estimated number of vacancies which will occur during the ensuing twelve-month period in the grade of major general is less than will permit the selection for temporary promotion of a number of brigadier generals equal to 50 per centum of the number of such officers comprising the promotion zone for that grade, the Secretary of the Navy shall convene a board of not less than five officers serving in ranks above that of major general or rear admiral to consider and recommend for retirement a sufficient number of major generals to permit the selection for temporary promotion of the said number of brigadiers.

Army Relief Society

MRS. ROGER G. ALEXANDER

Corresponding Secretary

THE Army Relief Society was founded and incorporated in New York City in 1900 by Army and Civilian women to furnish advice and financial assistance to widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel. The

Mrs. A. W. Page

Society has therefore had many years of experience in giving personalized help to Army women and children. This type of assistance is made possible because the work of the Society, carried on largely at its Headquarters in New York City, is performed by volunteer groups of Army and Civilian women. These women interest themselves in the detailed problems of each individual family helped. Throughout the years this has been the keynote of the work done for Army widows and orphans. Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the former Secretary of War, was for many years President of the Society. Mrs. Arthur W. Page is now the President, and Lt. General James G. Harbord is Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Whom It Can Help

In its original charter it is specified that 'The Army Relief Society will provide relief in cases of emergency for dependent widows and orphans of officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army of the United States, active or retired. It will aid in securing employment for such beneficiaries and will solicit and create scholarships and supervise educational opportunities for such beneficiaries.'

The Army Relief Society now gives similar assistance to "dependent widows and orphans of temporary personnel as may be requested and financed by the Army Emergency Relief."

The enlargement of the scope of the work of the Society was made possible through its affiliation with the Army Emergency Relief under an agreement made with the approval of the Secretary of War and bearing his signature.

Organization

(1) National. National Headquarters of the Army Relief Society is in the Empire State Building, 350 Fifth Avenue, New York City. In this office is the Secretary of the Society who is on duty six days a week. The affairs of the Society are directed by a Board of Managers consisting of twenty-two Army and Civilian women.

The work of the Society is handled mainly by three committees:

- a. The Relief Committee.
- b. The Educational and Junior Relief Committee.

- c. The Pension Committee.

(2) Local. On 87 Army Posts throughout the country the Society has representatives and on 137 Air Corps Posts and Stations the Personal Affairs Officers act as representatives of the Society. Army Relief Society Branches are being established in several large cities to interest retired Army personnel and civilians in the work of the Society.

Channels. (1) Individuals requiring advice or assistance may apply directly to the National Headquarters of the Society, and all cases referred to the Society by the Army Emergency Relief, Washington, D. C. are forwarded to the New York Office.

(2) Upon the death of an officer or enlisted man, the widow may apply for advice or emergency relief to the Chaplain or the Army Relief Society representative on the Post where she is living or nearest her place of residence. Emergency financial aid is promptly given when urgently needed. The name of the family helped and all pertinent details will then be forwarded to the New York Office of the Society.

In cases not of an emergency nature a questionnaire covering circumstances of husband's death, number of children, insurance, etc. is required to be filled out and signed by the widow with indorsement by a clergyman, a bank or some public official. Questionnaires are available on all Army Posts and also at National Headquarters.

Types of Assistance Given

(1) Financial.

- a. Immediate in emergency.
- b. Long time when necessary.
- c. Loans in hardship cases.
- d. Educational grants.

Real need is the controlling factor in determining financial assistance for Army widows and their children. After the death of an officer or enlisted man, his family may need partial support until insurance policies and pensions are paid, a new home found and the family moved. At times families are left temporarily without cash, in which cases prompt loans or occasional grants are made.

The resources of the Society are such that loans or grants cannot be made for the purchase of real estate or for those luxuries which widows cannot afford.

The Army Relief Society has paid for nurses, hospital bills, care of tubercular patients, comforts for the sick, has provided eye glasses, milk and penicillin, dental care and special diets for diabetics. These are but a few of the many ways in which the Society spends its money to advantage.

Money alone is not the solution for a widow's problems. She also needs reassurance and sympathy, and the Army Relief Society gives her these.

The value of the financial assistance rendered is greatly enhanced by the understanding letters which accompany all checks, and by the fact that all cases are handled confidentially.

The American Red Cross cooperates with the Army Relief Society most effectively and willingly by making investigations and recommendations for it and by supervising families who need help with regard to hospitalization, diets, schools, budgets, etc.

(2) Advice and assistance in obtaining:

- a. Pensions.
- b. Hospitalization, free or at reduced rates.
- c. Scholarships.
- d. Employment.
- e. Legal aid.

Due to the work done by the Pension Committee of the Society, many widows have had their cases reviewed and are now being awarded payments under the new laws.

The members of this committee are in constant contact with the Veterans Administration in regard to pensions and claims. Through contact with the All American Scholarship Committee, with the Daughters of the Cincinnati, and with other similar organizations, the members of the Educational and Junior Relief Committee are able to give beneficial advice as to where to apply for scholarships. Some educational grants and loans are made from funds left the Society for such special purposes.

Finances

The Army Relief Society has a capital of approximately one million dollars. When the income from this capital is not sufficient to support the work of the Society, the Army Emergency Relief reimburses the Society for money spent in excess of the income from its invested capital.

No appeal is made to the general public for funds, so the Army Relief Society looks to Army personnel and to civilian friends of the Army for contributions to enable it to carry on its work.

Classes of Memberships

(1) Any person contributing one dollar or more annually to the Society becomes a member.

(2) Members at Large pay annual dues of five dollars.

(3) A Life Membership is granted upon the payment of one hundred dollars.

(4) Army Relief Society Memorials, one hundred dollars or more.

(5) Army Relief Society Special Memorials, one thousand dollars or more.

Anyone wishing either to become a member of the Society or to give a Memorial may write and send check to the Army Relief Society, 350 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

A donor of a Memorial specifies the individual to be memorialized. Donors of Special Memorials also have the privilege of specifying how they wish either the capital or the income from the capital to be used.

For forty-seven years the Army Relief Society has quietly, sympathetically and efficiently ministered to the widows and orphans of officers and enlisted men in distress because of the uncertainties and vicissitudes of army life. A more widespread knowledge of the purpose and work of the Society should stimulate increased interest and support.

Navy Food Costs Rise

Because of the rising cost of food prices, the Navy has raised the cost of meals at general messes from 70 cents to 90 cents a day.

The higher cost for meals became effective 16 April, with the charge subdivided as follows: breakfast 20 cents, dinner 50 cents, and supper 20 cents.

Officers messes afloat and ashore, which pay for their food at cost, are not affected by this order, issued in NavAct 12.

The pay of officers subsisting on the general mess while serving on small craft, however, will be checked at the rate of 90 cents daily instead of 70 cents or $27 monthly instead of $21.

The increased charge for general mess meals is based on present and anticipated food costs over the next fiscal year.

Drill Pay for N. G. Officers

The Comptroller General has ruled that drill pay for National Guard officers must be computed by section 1 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, as amended. This provides that an officer is entitled to one-thirtieth of the monthly base pay of his grade for the pay period in which he is listed.

The resume of the decision follows:

"In view of the exception of 'armory drill and administrative function pay' in section 3 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, as amended, pertaining to the pay of National Guard officers when in Federal service, the armory drill pay authorized by section 14 of said act for National Guard officers should be computed on the basis of the pay provided by section 1 of the act, as amended, for the pay period applicable generally to officers of the grade involved, although they may have completed the service necessary to entitle them when in Federal service to the pay of a higher period."

Navy Good Conduct Medals

The Bureau of Naval Personnel has announced itself ready to issue the Good Conduct Medal to eligible personnel, and has directed commanding officers to carefully review the service records of personnel under their command and forward recommendations to the Bureau on those who have become eligible but have not previously been issued a Good Conduct Medal.

The Good Conduct Pins are not yet ready for distribution. However, recommendations will be maintained on file until the pins are available, at which time they will be transmitted to the recipients.

Scholarship Offered

The trustees of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., are offering a full four-year tuition scholarship to the son of an officer, warrant officer, petty officer, or non-commissioned officer on the active or retired list of the Navy and Marine Corps or to the son of deceased personnel of the above categories.

Individuals on active duty, who will be in an inactive duty status on or before 1 Sept. 1947, are eligible to apply. The student selected will be awarded free tuition for the full four-year course and will enter the Institute with the September 1947 class.

Col. McKenzie to ICAF Staff

Brig. Gen. E. B. McKinley, commandant of The Industrial College of the Armed Forces, has announced that orders have been issued assigning Col. Henry R. McKenzie, QMC, to the staff and faculty of the Industrial College.

Colonel McKenzie is at present on duty as Quartermaster for Headquarters, Army Ground Forces, Pacific Area. His new assignment is effective in June.

Gen. Kirk Outlines UMT Benefits

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, Surgeon General of the Army, 17 April outlined the health benefits which would be made available to citizens accepted for Universal Military Training.

General Kirk particularly emphasized the training in hygiene, preventive medicine and sanitation which is given the recruit.

"In the Army," General Kirk said, "entire groups of men can receive thorough training in the principles of health protection. It must be remembered that not only are these teachings of importance to the Army while the soldier is in service, but later in the civilian community he represents a distinct contribution toward the better understanding of health maintenance."

Adm. Conolly Decorated

The Belgian Order of the Crown with Palm in the rank of Grand Officer was presented recently to Admiral Richard L. Conolly, USN, Commander of U. S. Naval Forces, Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Sports Front

We predicted that last Saturday's Navy-Maryland lacrosse game would be one of the highlights of the stick season, but we had no idea that the net result would be a thrilling 10-9 overtime victory for Navy.

The game, which was tied 7-7 at the end of the regulation playing time, was one of the most exciting staged since the Indian tribes used to play lacrosse as a slightly gentler substitute for war.

Marked by seventeen penalties, the contest was see-saw affair all the way. The teams were tied 4-4 at half time and 6-6 with less than two minutes to play. At this stage Hunt put Navy ahead with a successful long shot, but Maryland tied the score with 43 seconds remaining.

In the overtime Navy jumped to the fore via two goals by Chambers and one by Carrington, with Maryland apparently having trouble getting itself untracked. However, the Terps recovered to tally twice, leaving players and spectators alike limp at the final whistle.

The win greatly strengthens Navy's chances of repeating its national collegiate championship.

With last Saturday testing Navy's mettle, today (19 April) finds Army in the lacrosse spotlight and on the spot. The Cadets tackle the redoubtable Mount Washington Club of Baltimore.

The Mounts are to lacrosse what the big leagues are to baseball—the best in the business. They are strictly amateur, but year after year they number among their ranks the best ex-collegiate lacrosse players still able to cradle a stick and amble around a field. They are probably the only team in sports having a title which, to all intents and purposes, is made to order for them—the National Open Lacrosse Championship, which they win monotonously.

All this is by way of pointing out that no one should be discouraged if the Wolfpack takes West Point's measure. If the Cadets play well enough to deserve being on the same field with Mount Washington, and we believe they will, that is sufficient proof that they have a stand-out college team.

Navy's baseball team dropped from the undefeated ranks by virtue of a 5-4 loss to Princeton on Saturday, 12 April. The following Tuesday the Midshipmen dropped a 10-4 decision to the Baltimore Orioles of the International League. There was solace in this one, though, as they were leading the pros 2-1 at the end of five innings, showing that Max Bishop's charges can give a good account of themselves in any kind of company.

Army, meanwhile, has been losing only to the weatherman of late. The week's schedule, curtailed by heavy Hudson dew, consisted entirely of a 10-5 win over Trinity, with winning hurler Mackmill allowing but three scattered hits in his seven inning trick. As we go to press, the Cadet's slate is still pristine.
